PREFACE

And you shall love the Lord
your God with
all your heart.

Search me O God and know my heart; try me and know my anxious thoughts, and see if there be any hurtful way in me, and lead me in the everlasting way.

Create in me a clean heart O God, and renew a steadfast spirit within me.

Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart be acceptable in Thy sight, O Lord, my rock and my redeemer.

For with the heart man believes, resulting in righteousness, and with the mouth he confesses, resulting in salvation.

The Heart: The Nucleus of the Spirit

By BOB WILLIAMS

Remember the Tin Woodsman in the Wizard of Oz? Think back to him clanking down the yellow brick road with the Scarecrow, the Cowardly Lion, Dorothy and Toto too. Like his companions, the Tin Man was trekking to the Emerald City hoping that the resident wizard there would grant him an important personal need. The Scarecrow wanted a brain. The Cowardly Lion longed for courage. Dorothy simply wanted a return trip to Kansas. Somewhere amidst fragmented strains of "Follow the Yellow Brick Road" and recollections of random munchkin melodies, I'll bet you can hear the Tin Man squeakily singing, "... If I only had a heart." If your memory continues to serve you well, perhaps you will also recall how proud the Tin Woodsman was of the heart-shaped watch the Wizard eventually hung around his neck — the symbol of the Tin Man's new-found heart.

I dare say that most everyone could benefit from a quest similar to that of the Tin Woodsman — a sincere pursuit of the heart. It is essential for us to understand the characteristics and the implications of this particular aspect of our being so we know exactly what is expected of us when the Lord Jesus bids us love Him with our whole hearts.

Of course, here we are referring to a man's heart as an immaterial, spiritual dimension of his being; not the literal cardiac organ. In our society, it's not especially easy to get a handle on the spiritual essence of the term heart, because it has become such an emotional catch-all word. We hear much about the heart, but do we really grasp the depth of the concept? Modern popular music would tell us that our hearts may belong to daddy, that they can be left in San Francisco, and that they might even be found hot-rodding out on the boulevard, bound perhaps for "Heart-break Hotel." Drama and literature also embody similar confusing references. For many, an understanding of the heart does not extend beyond a Valentine's Day card mentality.

A careful study of Scripture can provide us with a larger frame of reference. Consider Psalm 139:23-24: "Search me O God, and know my heart; try me and know my anxious thoughts; and see if there be any hurtful way in me, and lead me in the everlasting way." Or Proverbs 4:23: "Watch over your heart with all diligence for from it flow the springs of life." These verses and others like them use the term heart to describe the very core of one's being.

Components of the Heart

The Bible delineates some specific functions of the heart. For instance, the heart is the seat of our motives and intentions, be they genuine or alterior. As Jeremiah 17:9-10 reads, "The heart is more deceitful than all else and is desperately sick; Who can understand it? 'I the Lord search the heart, I test the mind, even to each man according to his ways.' "

It's apparent that our rational, logical abilities are also affected by our hearts. Solomon prayed asking the Lord for "an understanding heart to judge Thy people to discern between good and evil" (I Kings 3:9).

Perhaps the most dominant aspect of the heart is its emotional influence. As I mentioned above, many have an isolated comprehension of the heart, confined to this dimension of emotions. I Chronicles 16:10 proclaims, "Let the heart of those who seek the Lord be glad." In Jeremiah 11:20 the prophet appeals to God as "The Lord of hosts who judges righteously, who tries the feelings of the heart."

Since the common denominators of the heart are motives — catalysts which trigger intellectual responses — which are in turn influenced by emotional heart also prompts volitional activity. Notice the choice made in Psalm 14:1: "The fool has said in his heart, 'There is no God.'" Consider as well the numerous times Pharaoh's hardened heart influenced his choices during the time of the plagues and the Exodus.

More Than Warm Fuzzies

From these passages, it is more than apparent that the heart dictates far more than warm, fuzzy feelings. The heart really seems to qualify as the nucleus of one's spirit — comprised of motives, rationale, emotions and volition.

The combined functions of the heart are essential to salvation as well. Romans 10:9-10 states, "If you confess with your mouth

Jesus as Lord, and believe in your heart that God raised Him from the dead, you shall be saved; for with the heart man believes resulting in righteousness, and with the mouth he confesses resulting in salvation."

It is completely valid that God should ask for the devotion of our whole hearts. Loving in this degree involves being certain that our motives, our thoughts, our emotions, and our choices conform to His standards. This is all part of presenting ourselves to Him as living sacrifices — our reasonable spiritual service (Romans 12:1).

Pure Hearts, Authentic Living

If we are seriously committed to loving the Lord wholeheartedly, we should give special attention to what Jesus Himself emphasizes about the heart. For example, among the beatitudes, those promises which Jesus enumerated in His Sermon on the Mount, we can find both direction and encouragement as we pursue loving the Lord with our whole hearts. In this passage Jesus commends eight particular virtues, including the quality of a pure heart.

By a pure heart, Jesus is referring to an uncontaminated, unviolated cleanness which pervades one's deepest motives and intentions. As Chuck Swindoll writes in his book Improving Your Serve (Word Books, 1981), this measure of purity "does not refer simply to doing the right things, but doing the right things for the right reason" (p. 114). The Lord desires that we be thoroughly sincere in all that we do and that our sincerity would issue from the genuine motivation of a pure heart. Such sincerity is the prerequisite for honest authentic living which should be our aim as Christians.

Authentic living leaves no room for any sort of hypocrisy or double standards. We cannot put up facades or give others false impressions and expect to live authentic and pure lives.

The Lord assures us that those believers who maintain pure hearts shall one day see God Himself. This promise should inspire us to pursue loving the Lord with our whole hearts in greater earnest.

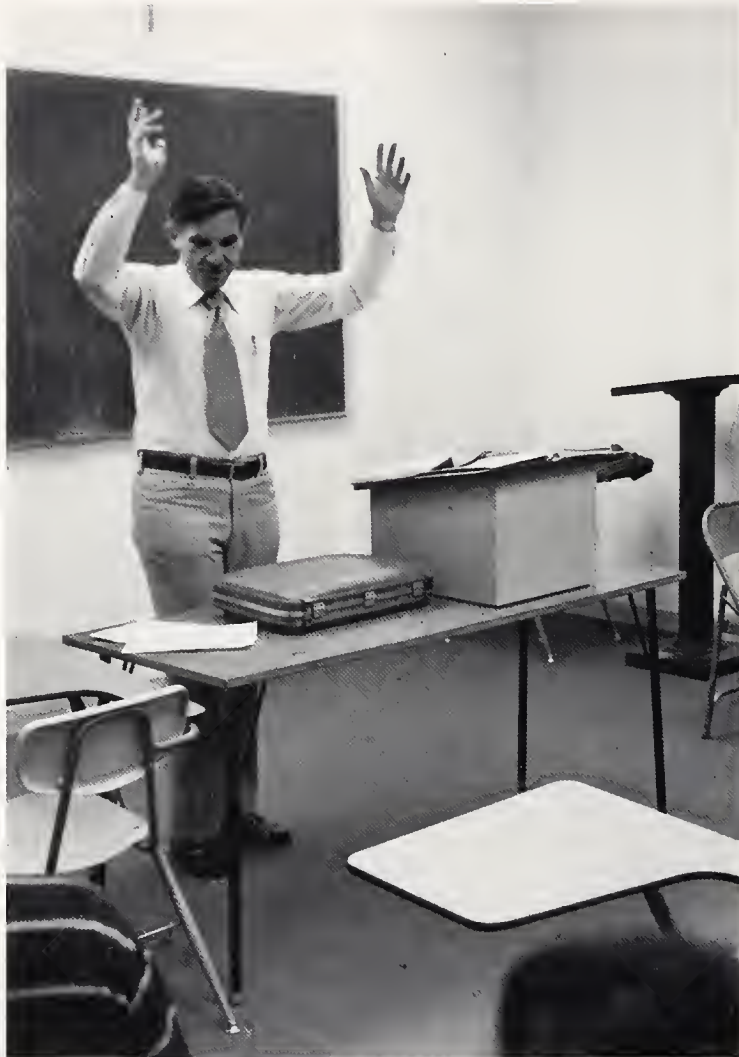

Matthew 7:18 is another passage of Scripture through which we gain information concerning the heart. After advising us against hoarding worldly treasures and instructing us to channel our energies toward securing treasures in heaven, the Lord reminds us that "for where your treasure is, there will your heart be also." If we truly prize Christ as our most valued Treasure, then loving Him wholeheartedly should follow naturally, as this verse makes clear.

Experiencing Biola from the Heart

Just as loving Him with our whole hearts is a vital part of maximum Christian living, it is equally essential to enjoying an optimum experience at Biola University. The Christian standards which have historically distinguished Biola as a thoroughly biblical, doctrinally sound institution continue to facilitate an ideal environment for exploring the treasures of the Scriptures. Wholehearted love for the Lord can only make scriptural truths live more vividly for the student of God's Word.

The functions of the heart as outlined by Scripture are indispensable factors in the educational process. Evaluating motives, challenging intellects, stimulating emotional responses and prompting choices characterize real, profitable learning — especially in the university setting. Weighing facts and philosophies against heartfelt Christian convictions also serves to incorporate these functions of the heart in every field of study at Biola.

A love for the Lord that consumes the heart can also set the tone for quality relationships with friends and colleagues — relationships which form such a large part of campus life. Christ has commanded us to love our neighbors as our own selves — just as He has commanded us to love the Father, the Holy Spirit and Himself, our triune God, with an undivided and unreserved heart. And, as He has said, "There is no commandment greater than these" (Mark 12:31).

We must remember too that even as the Tin Woodsman's path to Oz and ultimately to his heart was not without complication, learning what it means to love God wholeheartedly is neither automatic nor without trials. However, our Saviour's call to devote our whole heart to Him in love is well-worth heeding. For as Solomon writes "He who keeps a royal command experiences no trouble, for a wise heart knows the proper time and procedure" (Ecclesiastes 8:5).

DEDICATION

Miss Sylvia Gilman: Serving Biola from Her Heart for 21 Years

Dedication, in both senses of the word, is truly a matter of the heart. Dedication in the form of an active commitment to a responsibility or a relationship is perpetuated by a deep motivation that is rooted in the heart. To be sure, when an individual demonstrates this kind of consistent devotion, another type of dedication is in order — indeed a heartfelt expression of appreciation.

It is just this sort of honor with which the 1982 Biolan staff wishes to recognize Miss Sylvia Gilman. The measure of her faith, her humble composure and her selfless labor at Biola exemplify her wholehearted dedication to the Lord Jesus Christ.

Miss Gilman has served Biola from her heart for twenty-one years. Her warm personality and sincere commitment to her responsibilities as an associate professor of English consistently wins the admiration of her students. Miss Gilman has a special way of building up the confidence of her students, especially those in the basic English courses she teaches. Her genuine interest in each individual's progress and capacity makes the instruction she provides especially personal and effective.

Miss Gilman is quick to say that the leading which brought her to Biola was some of the clearest that she had ever received. "The course of events which preceeded my coming to Biola is eyeball-deep in miracles," she says. "Before I came to Biola I remember praying, 'Lord, please give me your will or take me home.' And after that, boy — the wheels really began to turn. Through the years, the Lord has repeatedly assured me that I am exactly where I belong, and I'm resting in that fact."

The words of the old chorus "To do His will is my highest prize" characterize Miss Gilman's life. And in keeping with His will, her life truly exemplifies what it means to love the Lord with the dedication of all one's heart, mind, soul and strength.

Miss Gilman firmly believes that the Lord's commandments are not merely to be parroted, but rather should be practiced. Her favorite scripture verse, John 14:21 in the Amplified Version provides tremendous insight for Christian living and is especially relevant to the charge of Mark 12:30-31. Here John quotes the Lord's comments to His disciples, "The person who has My commands and keeps them is the one who really loves Me, and whoever really loves Me will be loved by My Father. And I too will love him and show Myself to him — I will let Myself be clearly seen by him and make Myself real to him."

And so, by virtue of this reality of Christ in you, and because you have made Him more real to us, we, the 1982 Biolan staff dedicate this book to you, Miss Sylvia Gilman, with unreserved gratitude for your commitment to Christ and to Biola University.

SPIRITUAL LIFE and the Fine Arts

And you shall
love the Lord
your God with
all your soul.

As the deer pants for the water brooks, so my soul pants for Thee, O God. My soul thirsts for God, for the living God; when shall I come and appear before God? My tears have been my food day and night . . .

Deep calls unto deep at the sound of Thy waterfalls; all Thy breakers and Thy waves have rolled over me . . .

Why are you in despair, O my soul? And why have you become disturbed within me? Hope in God, for I shall yet praise Him, the help of my countenance, and my God.

Psalm 42

The Soul: The Seat of Creativity and Worship

By LYN MILLER

For many of us, the term "soul" is a somewhat shadowy one. In the continuing aftermath of the high emphasis placed on science and technology in the last several years, the immaterial elements of our environment have been largely discredited. Rationalism and scientific discovery have been idolized, and as a result the church has neglected to make clear just what the soul is.

In Christian circles, it seems that the soul is most often seen as the distinctly non-physical, eternal element of each man. When we say "He saved my soul," we usually are speaking of the fact that we have secured an entrance into the presence of God after death. We often view the soul as the part of us that receives eternal blessings, while vaguely feeling that it has little to do with current day-to-day living. The fact that Christians have been commanded to love God with their souls as well as with their hearts, minds and strength, though, dissolves the idea that the soul is not active in the here and now.

The words translated in scripture as "soul" are used in a variety of ways. The Psalmist says, "My soul, wait only upon God, and silently submit to Him; for my hope and expectation are from Him" (Psalms 62:5). Here the soul is referred to as David's inner self, his being, and is active in submitting to God. In Proverbs 25:25, the soul takes on physical qualities: "As cold waters to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country." The soul is also referred to as the seat of the emotions, as when Jesus, aware of his impending death, told his disciples, "my soul is exceeding sorrowful, even unto death . . ." (Matthew 26:38).

Chapel provides daily nourishment for the soul through a variety of speakers, musicians and special presentations.

The Soul as the Whole Being

If we consider the soul in this broader sense as being the inner self or the whole being, loving God with our whole soul becomes a much less nebulous task. Rather than being separate from practical Christian living, the soul generates the activities and decisions in the believer's life, and is necessarily active as he strives to love God with his mind and strength as well.

If it is true that the expression "soul" can refer to the whole person, then how does loving God from the soul differ from loving Him from the mind or heart? In the first place, the soul stands apart as the eternal element of man. Unlike the body, the soul does not deteriorate with age. The fact that the soul remains constant both throughout earthly life and after gives the Christian a much greater wealth of responsibility to love God. C.S. Lewis has said, "... Christianity asserts that every individual human being is going to live forever ... Now there are a good many things which wouldn't be worth bothering about if I were going to live only seventy years, but which I'd better bother about very seriously if I am going to live forever." With this in mind, loving with the soul suddenly becomes a matter of much greater concern.

The soul's capacities (or the characteristics of the whole being) transcend mere thought or emotion and include man's ultimate spiritual responsibility. Though some men will choose to employ their minds in the worship and service of the King, and though many through His grace will feel His presence, men as whole beings will inevitably confess that Jesus Christ is Lord. Tertullian has said, "There is not a soul of man that does not from the light that is in itself proclaim God."

Expressions from the Soul

For those who have realized the Lordship of Christ, loving Him with all their souls means more than following a well-reasoned method or depending on irregular emotions.

"For the word of God is . . . sharper than any two edged sword, and piercing as far as the division of soul and spirit . . ."

The believer needs to worship and obey from his whole being. He does this by employing his particular talents, be they artistic, athletic or social. Perhaps the most wondrous "soul expressions" are those dealing with the arts. These gifts represent a special aura of love, and though one may inherit the capacity to do well in a given field, he must choose to reflect God's own creative attribute. The products of artistic expression are precious indeed, be they paintings, symphonies, photographs, poems or other forms. What is essential is the motivation behind each creative act, the desire of the Christian to fully communicate love to his Lord.

If Christians fully realized the implications of the charge to love God with all their souls, what a tremendous showcase of abilities and talents would the body of Christ be. And as each member devotedly expresses his whole self to his Savior in love, he can proclaim, "It is well, it is well, with my soul."

Know that wisdom is this for your soul; if you find it then there will be a future, and your hope will not be cut off.

CHAPEL

Generating Anticipation and Worship

Ministering to the needs of the mainstream of the students here at Biola, challenging and motivating students into a closer relationship with Christ, developing within each student a greater understanding of who God is, generating a positive attitude and anticipation toward chapels and chapel attendance were the major objectives the 1981-82 Chapel Board sought to implement this year.

To realize these goals, Chapel Board coordinated Christ-centered chapels which afforded a variety of opportunities for individual and corporate worship. The board, led by Chairman Jon Warnshuis, scheduled a variety of excellent speakers throughout the year, including Dr. Lehman Strauss, Pastor Ray Ortlund of Mariner's Church in Newport Beach and Pastor Chuck Swindoll of First Evangelical Free Church of Fullerton. Chapels also featured a wide range of musical talent to enhance worship times.

We, as a student body, were challenged to slow down and be still before the Lord (Dr. Rigsby), to enjoy our Christian life (Tim Hansel) and to check our Christian attitudes about pressures and problems (Chuck Swindoll).

While Chapel Board organized chapels Tuesday through Thursday, Monday chapels were sponsored by the Administration, while Friday chapels were sponsored by the Student Missionary Union. Students and faculty enjoyed a variety of chapel options each Thursday, including special interest cadres and worship celebrations in Lansing Auditorium led by Professors Kirk, Schwarz, Wiebe and Unfried.

STUDENT MISSIONS

Expanded Ministries Advance Evangelism

For a sailor to cross the ocean, he needs a ship. The ship must be under his control and have the structural capabilities to accomplish the journey for which it is destined. "Our goal for the Student Missionary Union," according to SMU President Scott Schmachtenberger, "is that it would be a vessel through which students could accomplish God's desires for their lives in helping to fulfill the Great Commission."

SMU is not a small group of "elect" students, but a large group of everyday people helping to reach the world through a number of avenues provided within SMU.

Outreaches in South Los Angeles, Tijuana and to international students, as well as ministries to troubled teens in the area and a new ministry to Mormons, gave hundreds of Biolans many opportunities to further the cause of Christ in local surroundings.

On the foreign scene, over 70 students were slated to travel to Japan and the Philippines on special teams through the 1982 SMU summer missions program Jabez II.

SMU was involved with a variety of other projects this year, including the production of The Summer Missions Opportunities Handbook. The effectiveness of the handbook was the fact that over 1700 copies were on order before production of the booklet was completed.

Special opportunities for support were also coordinated by SMU, including Operation Proclamation, a program through which Biola students sought to raise $25,000 to facilitate increased radio broadcasting of the Gospel into the Soviet Union, China, Vietnam and other countries.

SMU sponsored the fifty-third annual Missionary Conference May 3-7, 1982. Keynote speakers Dr. Clyde Cook, Kundan Massey, John MacArthur, Keith Phillips and hundreds of mission board representatives challenged students to consider the wide range of opportunities for service which are available around the globe.

Summarizing the year in SMU, Schmachtenberger notes that, "SMU has seen an expansion of ministries through which students may be actively involved. As we look to the future, we need to realize that we as students are going to be the next major force in world evangelism. If we pick up the ball and run with it, we will see God accomplish great things through us."

SUMMER MISSIONS

Reaping His Harvest

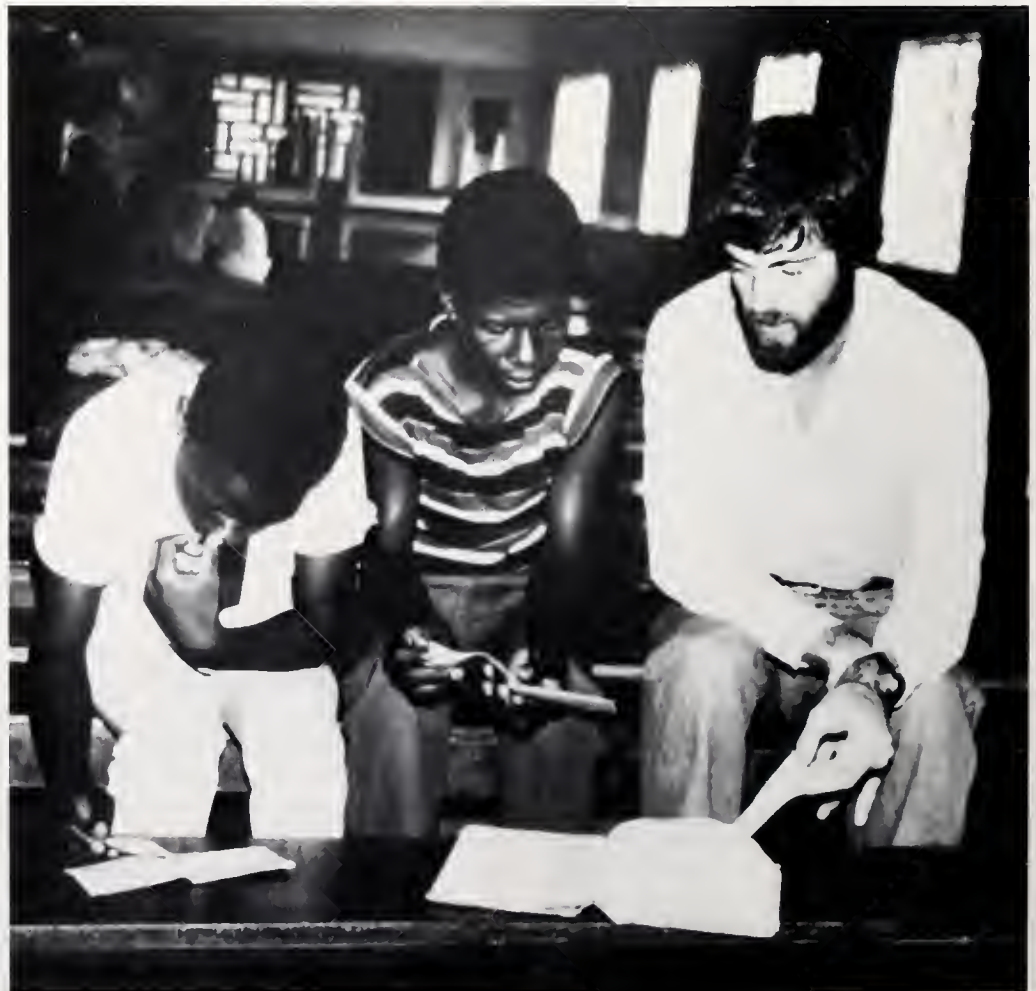

Typhoons, misplaced passports and flash floods were but a few of the adventures experienced by Biola's 1981 SMU summer mission teams. Three separate teams totaling twenty-five members set out last June to share the Gospel in three cross-cultural situations — Taiwan, Nigeria and Irian Jaya. The corporate endeavor was entitled Summer Harvest 1981. Summer missionaries were involved in several diverse methods of direct and indirect evangelism, ranging from teaching English Bible classes throughout the island of Taiwan, preaching and counseling new believers in Benue State, Nigeria and providing manual labor for work projects in the remote regions of tropical Irian Jaya.

After spending two weeks in cultural orientation in the capital city of Taipei, the Taiwan team dispersed to various teaching assignments in Chinese churches. The Biola team served as part of the larger summer team organized by O.C. Ministries, Inc., led by full-time missionaries Mr. and Mrs. Jason Johnson. Summer team members worked closely with students from Christ's College in Taiwan who served as translators and partners in ministry.

The SMU team that traveled to Nigeria found the African people to be spiritually open and hungry. Team leader and native Nigerian Ben Ibi described the atmosphere as one of interest and receptiveness to the team's evangelistic efforts. The team worked in conjunction with the Nigerian based Free Life Mission which works with local churches to train and supply pastors and church leaders.

An all-male SMU team journeyed to the South Pacific island of Irian Jaya. The island constitutes the western half of the island once known collectively as New Guinea. The team experienced the rigors and beauties of Irian Jaya's rugged terrain as they labored to meet both the spiritual and physical needs of individuals there through a ministry of manual labor and encouragement with Regions Beyond Missionary Union.

Despite flash floods in Irian Jaya, a typhoon in Taiwan and passport problems on each team, SMU summer team members experienced life-changing growth personally and enjoyed the privilege of leading many individuals to a saving knowledge of the Lord Jesus, thereby increasing His harvest.

STUDENT MINISTRIES

Love Motivates Service

Ministry involves carrying out Christ's mandate to extend His love to others. Director of Student Ministries, Ron Hafer comments, "The privilege of ministry can surely be viewed as a responsibility we all have as believers"

Motivation is definitely fundamental to the effectiveness of ministry. If we minister because of our love for the Lord, then He is glorified through our efforts. The model for such appropriately motivated ministry is a servant's heart, and through a variety of student ministry programs, Biolans have weekly opportunities to demonstrate authentic servanthood.

By spending time with convalescent home residents, sharing with children through Good News Clubs or SMU outreaches, street witnessing in downtown Los Angeles with Open-Air Campaigners, performing in a gospel team or working in a local church, Biola students experience firsthand the value of ministry and personal rewards which confirm individual commitments to His service.

DAY OF PRAYER

Quiet Meditation Refreshes the Soul

“You live in a pressure-cooker of demands. Unless you take time to quiet the clamor and the hustle and bustle of living, you’ll never hear that still, small voice,” Dr. Richard Rigsby told students who attended the morning chapel session of the Fall Day of Prayer. Dr. Rigsby referred to 1 Kings 19 for the text of his message on the necessity for quietness and prayer in the life of the believer. He asserted that although the Biola campus offers opportunity for the refreshment of soul and spirit, students “have to leave their normal routine and seek God,” as did the prophet Elijah.

Several students “put feet to their prayers” by participating in the “Adopt-a-Park” program conducted on Fall Day of Prayer. Biolans worked together to clean and make repairs at La Mirada Regional Park. Those who took part were later commended by Los Angeles County officials for their hard work.

Both fall and spring Day of Prayer activities included sunrise and communion services, as well as ample time for students to spend alone in prayer and reflection.

Dr. Richard Strauss, pastor of Emmanuel Faith Community Church in Escondido, California, based his message on the Spring Day of Prayer theme, Psalms 105:4: “Seek the Lord and His strength; seek His face continually.”

TORREY CONFERENCE

Scriptural Truths Penetrate Souls

As a prominent Bible scholar and an early founder of the Bible Institute of Los Angeles, R.A. Torrey has long been considered one of the nation's greatest leaders in the field of Christian education. It is in his honor that Biola sponsors Torrey Memorial Bible Conference each year during the week between Intersession and Spring Semester.

This year, those who attended the 45th annual conference profited from Bible exposition and interaction with featured speakers Dr. Norm Geisler, author and professor of systematic theology at Dallas Theological Seminary; Dr. Charles Ryrie, also an author and professor at Dallas Seminary, as well as editor of the Ryrie Study Bible; Mike Corcoris, senior pastor of the historic Church of the Open Door in Los Angeles;

Kent Hughes, pastor of the 110-year-old College Church in Wheaton, Illinois; and Mrs. Sue Burnham, counselor at Agape Counseling Services in Akron, Ohio, and author of a Bible study series published by Moody Press.

Returning to the Biola campus by popular demand, singer Isaiah Jones highlighted Torrey Conference with a special concert. Jones, who has received numerous musical honors including Grammy nominations has channeled his talents for God's praise and glory.

The theme of the 1982 conference, taken from Hebrews 4:12, "For the Word of God is living and active and sharper than any two-edged sword," encouraged students to allow the truths of Scripture to penetrate their hearts, souls and minds.

VOYAGE TO A KINGDOM

Ah, to live in a fair kingdom land
A land beyond the sea.
To make the voyage through a world unknown
To ride so high, so free.

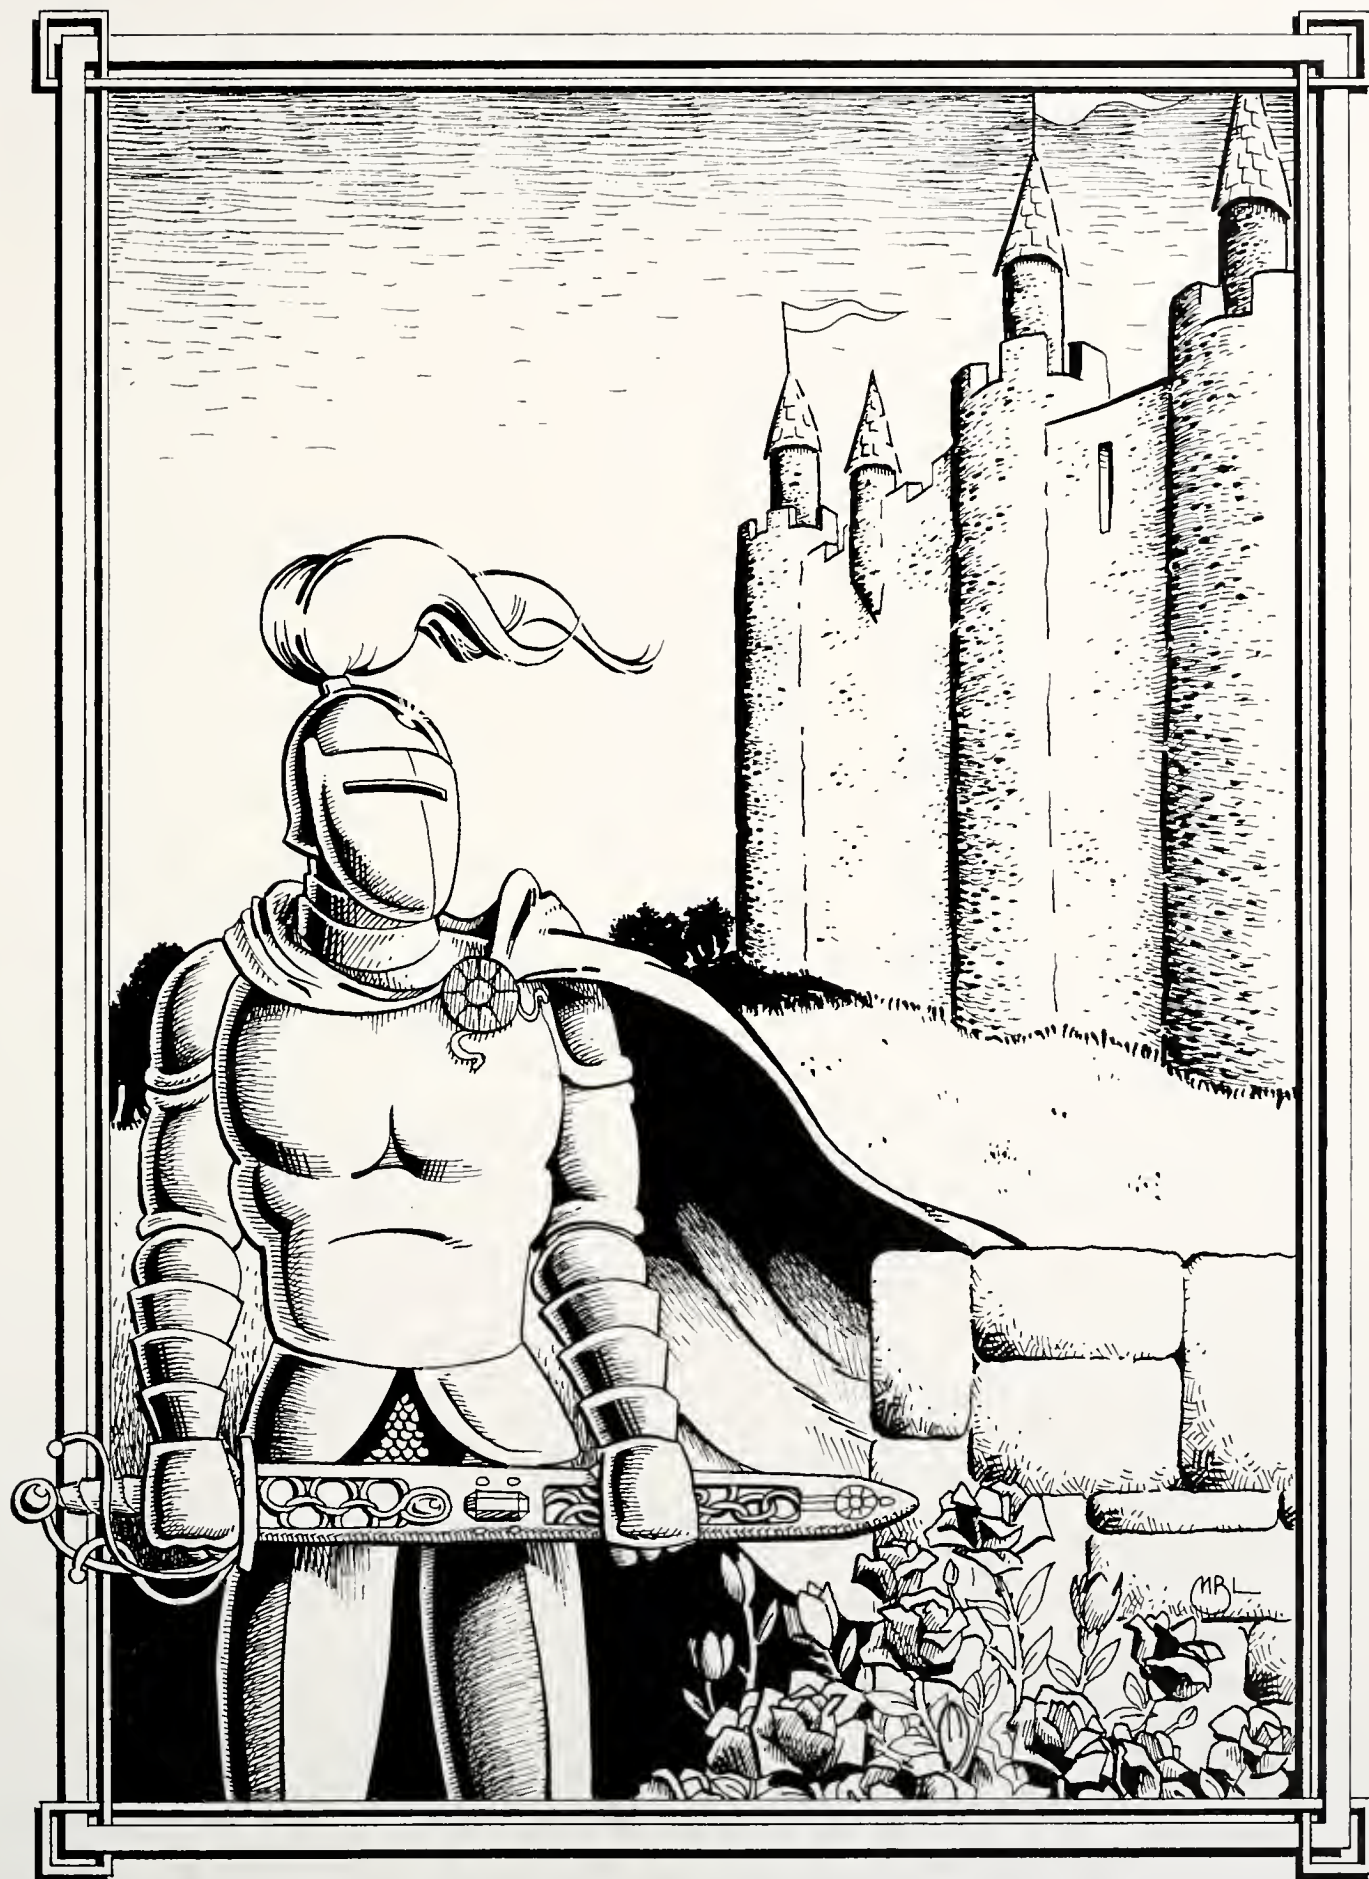

While others look from top their ships
And jeer there is no land;
This place is flat, it ends somewhere,
It's only what's held with hands.

But I long to live where dreams are real,
Where you touch and feel with heart.
A knight still rides all in white
And has perfected love to art.

When I sail to this sea's end,
And if so, there be no knight or land,
I'll shed no tear for the ride's been high and free,
And I have touched with more than hands.

I've truly felt both young and old today
 On the road I was old
 With a hulging pocket of memories good and bad
 Now I feel utterly young
 Watching a mincing plume — the squirrel's tail
 The gray-green of the forest
 Where cowwebs bedeck tree-trunk hovels
 And water waits and ages in silent pools
 I watch remotely
 Too old to sense and join the pulse of life there
 Too young to retire on its calm and share its peace.

Grand daydreams for Empty moments.

UNDERSTAND GOD?

I once was explaining to a friend how I could see You in nature. With a challenge in his voice, he asked me what Your eyes were like. I said, "Have you ever noticed the twinkle of stars on a clear summer night?" He smiled and understood.

Then he asked me what Your hair was like. I said, "Have you ever seen a golden wheat field under the rays of the early morning sun?" He smiled and understood.

He asked me if You were big and strong, or timid and gentle. I said, "Have you ever marveled at the powerful hulk of a 20,000-foot mountain? Or the tenderness of a newborn fawn?" He smiled and understood.

He asked me how You walked and how You talked. I said, "Have you ever seen the fluid grace of a giraffe in full flight? Or listened to the wind whisper and laugh its way through the flowers in a wild meadow?" He smiled and understood.

He asked me what it was like, this peace You gave me. I said, "Have you ever sat alone beside a quiet mountain stream and just listened to the birds?" A smile of understanding lit up his face. The truth was starting to sink in for him.

But then the wrinkles of question creased his forehead again, and he asked if You were very loving. I said, "Would you let someone take your only son and beat him, and whip him, and nail him to a cross until he was dead, just so others might live?"

He frowned, and didn't understand.

"I just can't believe in something I don't understand," he said with a sigh. And then he turned and walked away into a lonely, empty life.

THE AWAKENING

The caressing touch of spring sneaks
and cracks the cold impersonal clutch
of a cruel winter
Finally free, naked feet
squish cool mud between the toes and frolic in careless childlike abandon along deep carpets of lush green grass
The perfume of newly tilled earth,
early morning fresh cut lawns,
and the fragrance of a vast flowered field
rise gently into the trickling sweat
of the summer sun

A lone liberated runner breathes deep in ecstatic exhilaration
A child in yellow sneakers and red ribboned ponytails curls a pink tongue fondly around dripping wet double-dip chocolate swirl . . .
sweet succulent stolen strawberries
damp furtive first kisses
mindless, endless drive-in movies icy bubbling 7-up
slender bikini clad teenagers
muscle-bound lifeguards in neon trunks and noxzema noses
sugary magenta watermelon barbecued hot dogs and mounds of potato salad
Sunday school picnics
and swinging, teeter tottering, hopscotching children
Magical summer triumphs again
laughing, lounging, and lazy
the long awaited lover
arousing a dormant earth
the hope and promise of returning everlasting
youth.

UNIQUE

It's been said that no two stars or no two snowflakes are the same.
I'm learning that in this life
no two people are alike.

In a world of conformity I must come apart,
away from the crowds to remain unique.

Standing firmly though differently;
not afraid to allow myself to be the person that I was created to be,
uniquely created before the foundations of the earth,
unique before I was in my mother's womb.

At times it may be difficult to be true to my uniqueness.
Perhaps others will laugh, or call me weird or crazy.

Yet, it is always easy to be true to myself and the One who created me to be unique.
I accept it in myself as I accept it in you.

Perhaps we will compliment each other amidst our uniqueness.

We could teach one another to perceive the world from a different point of view.

We could understand life somewhat better.

Maybe even see things we've never seen before.

It's so wonderful that you don't avoid or shun me because I choose to remain myself.

It's even better that you have given up trying to make me like you,
or what you think I should be.

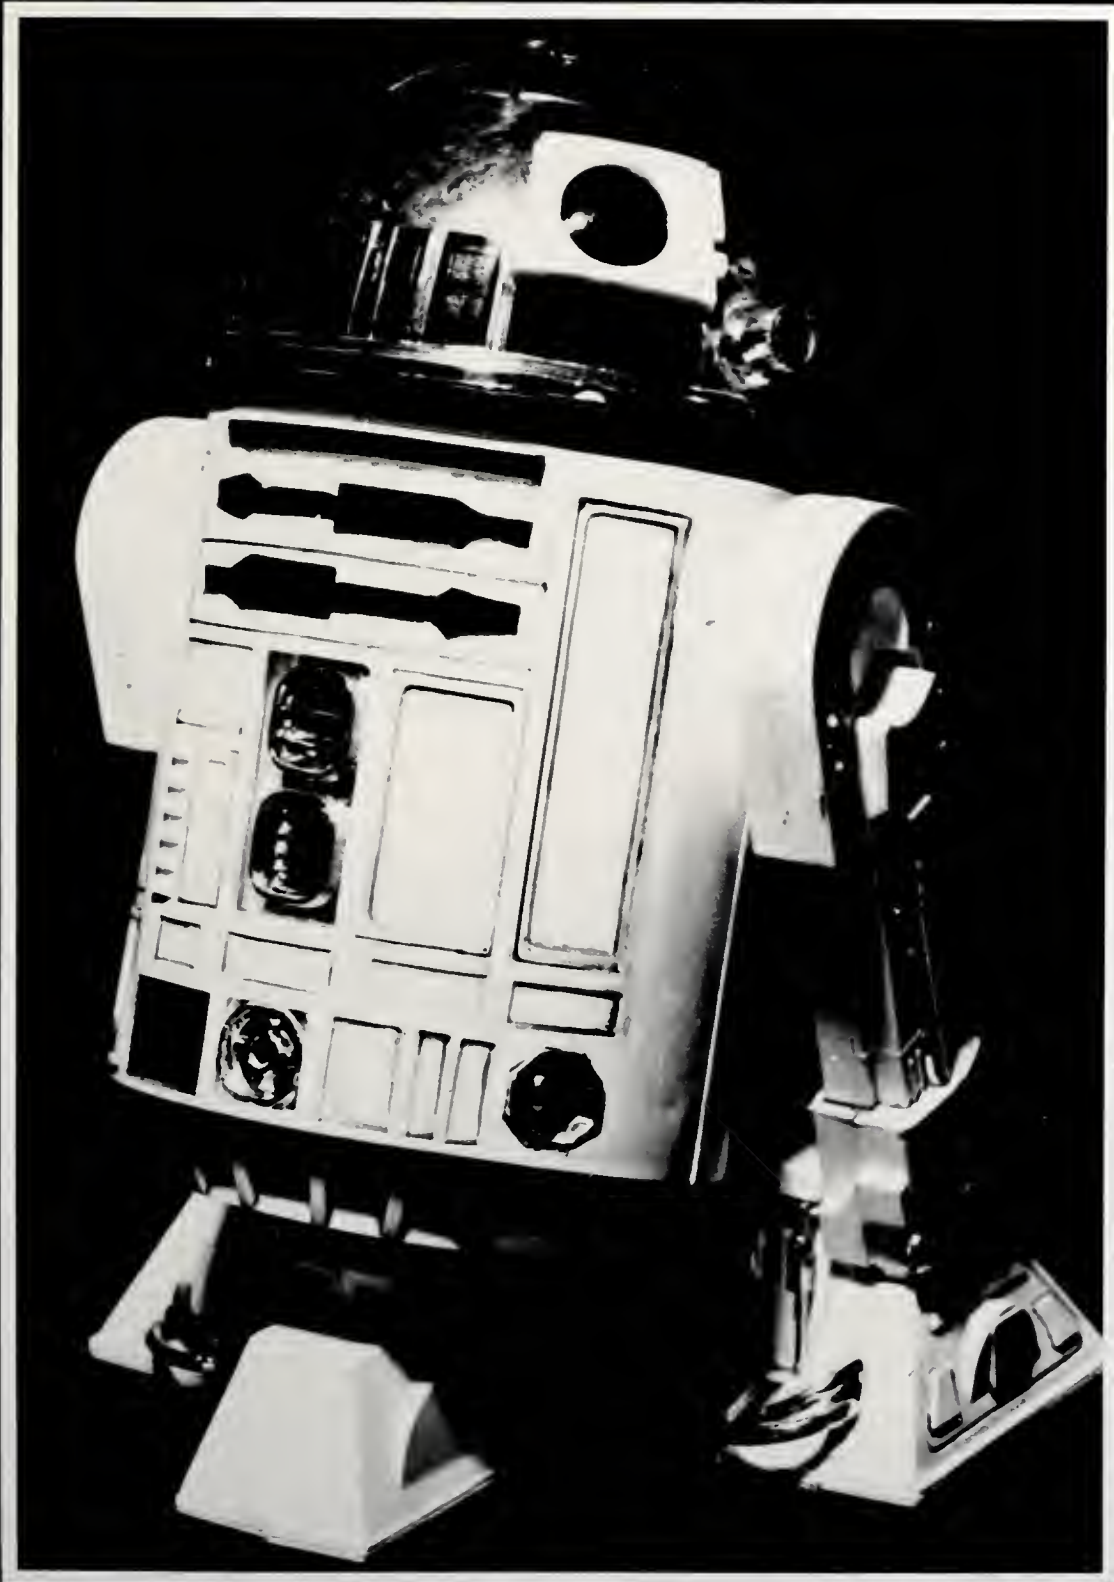

Thank you my friend
for your sensitivity, acceptance, and love.

I appreciate you
because you allow me to be what I am . . .

Unique.

FALL PLAY

The Diary of Anne Frank

Hiding from the Gestapo in a small Amsterdam attic for two years before finally being discovered and herded off to a concentration camp, Anne Frank, a thirteen year old Jewish girl, wrote a diary. "Dear Kitty" was the imaginary confidante to whom Anne voiced all her hopes, fears, dreams, anguish and joys: "I only know it's funny never to be able to go outdoors . . . never to breathe fresh air . . . never to run and jump . . . I am longing, so longing for everything . . . for friends, for someone to talk to; someone who understands. Someone young who feels as I do . . . I want to go on living after my death."

The stage adaption, taken from the actual diary, lucidly conveys the conditions in which eight people were cramped into forced intimacy and interdependence — with its wide spectrum of emotion and experience. In the dingy shelter offered to them by Dutch friends, the Franks with their two teenage daughters, the Van Daans with their boy, and Mr. Dussel, an elderly bachelor, struggle to survive. Anne's straightforward manner and vivid imagination affirm the strength of the human spirit and the beauty amidst the pain of the war which she, like so many others, could never comprehend.

This theatre-in-the-round production was directed by Jerry Fischer, produced by Melodie Narramore and was presented in the McNally Theatre.

SPRING PLAY

Biola Comes Alive With The Sound of Music

A brilliant rendition of the legendary Rogers and Hammerstein musical The Sound of Music was presented February 25-March 6 as Biola's spring 1982 production.

The stage version of the familiar story based on the life of the Trapp family of Austria differs slightly from the film adaptation released in the 1960s; however, the classic plot remains the same. The drama revolves around the experiences of Maria Rainer, a young postulant at Nonnberg Abbey in Salzburg. Due to Maria's enthusiastic preoccupation with the beauty of nature, the mother abbess at Nonnberg sends her to work at the villa of Captain Georg von Trapp to serve as a temporary governess to the widowed captain's seven children, and to test her commitment before she entered the noviate. Maria eventually wins the affection of all the children and instills them with her love for music. Eventually, Maria realizes that she has fallen in love with Captain von Trapp. Frightened by this, Maria returns to the abbey where the mother abbess encourages her to overcome any obstacle that lies in the way of happiness. Soon after Maria returns to the villa, and she and the captain recognize their mutual affection and marry. The story unfolds amidst the rise of Nazism in Austria, and upon returning from his honeymoon with Maria, the captain is commissioned for German naval duty. As a loyal nationalist, he refuses to comply and arranges to flee Austria with his family.

Senior music major Becky Agulian played the lead role of Maria in Biola's production. Becky said, "Ever since I was a small girl, I've wanted to play the part of Maria in The Sound of Music. For me, this is a dream come true!" "I thought a small part in a musical would be fun after 15 years," joked Dave Garrett, who returned to the stage to play the role of Captain Georg von Trapp. Sharon Hansen also surprised herself by taking her daughter up on the dare to audition for the role of the Mother Abbess. Jodee Karroll (Elsa Schraeder), Bruce Hall (Max), Jolene Bird (Liesl), Jeff Dolan (Rolf) and Mathew Arietta (Friedrich) together contributed much experience to make this such a top quality production. Melodie Narramore served as the general director and Wilmar Wall as music director. The play was staged in the Lansing Auditorium.

FORENSICS

Orators Share Lives

The Biola forensics team, coached by Dr. Todd Lewis and Assistant Coach Lori Luther, has a widely acclaimed history of national rankings. During the 1980-81 school year, ten Biolans qualified for the National Forensics Tournament in Baltimore, Maryland, where Biola earned a third place national ranking for small colleges and universities.

In addition to hosting their own tournament each semester, Biola participates in roughly 20 tournaments throughout the year. They compete against major universities from California, Utah, Airizona and Oregon. This year, the team took four major road trips. The fall semester included a trek to Oregon, while spring semester featured the Governor's Cup Tournament in Sacramento; the Desert Classic in Tucson, Arizona and the national tournaments held in Mankato, Minnesota and Columbus, Ohio.

Biola returned with sweepstakes awards from the Long Beach, Northridge and Governor's Cup tournaments, and earned substantial honors as well in subsequent competition. 1981-82 proved to be a record-breaking year for Biola's three Reader's Theatres in terms of appeal and awards alike.

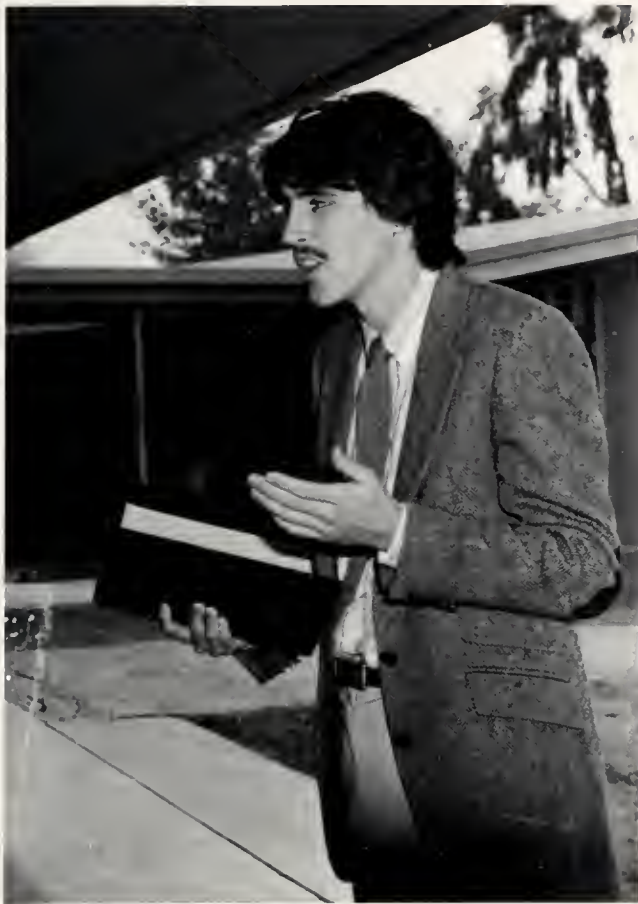

Although the forensics team has excelled competitively, winning is not their major goal. Competing against many of the same inter-collegiate speakers almost every weekend provides team members with unique opportunities not only to articulate Christian values through the material they perform but also to share God's love through their lives and testimonies.

DRAMA TEAMS

Truths Come Alive

Biola's Drama Gospel Teams are committed to making Christian truths come to life. This year, three teams coordinated by the Communications Department and Marie Scheidell performed in a variety of settings both on and off campus.

S.A.L.T. (Spreading A Little Truth) Company offered a repertory which included several portrayals of biblical characters. Silent Vision, Biola's mime troupe, utilized the ancient art of pantomime to convey the Gospel in a unique way. Fantasy Machine entertained children of all ages with action-filled presentations.

Two additional gospel teams employed other dramatic channels for sharing the Good News. The King's Jesters, a clown team encouraged audiences to look at the lighter side of life, while the New Creatures acted out parables and principles through a variety of puppetry routines.

SYMPHONIC BAND

Amplifying Talent and Encouragement

The 1982 Symphonic Band, a group of musically talented Biolans, gathered from locations across the United States and abroad to blend talents and develop friendships.

From the outset of the year, the band's goal was to live up to the challenge of Hebrews 10:24-25: that is to consistently encourage one another to grow and mature in Christ. The band concentrated on this objective during their annual autumn retreat at Forest Home, and continued to build and amplify the idea in each subsequent rehearsal.

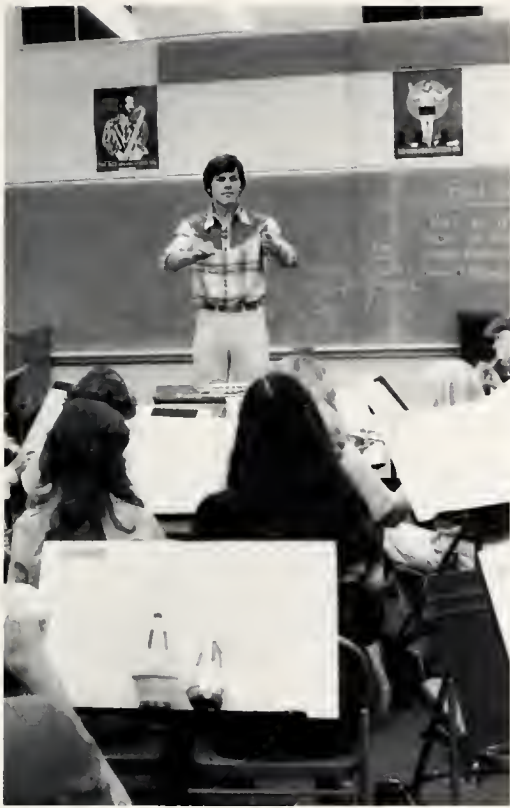

This year the band had to deal with a large influx of new musicians. Almost half of the instrumentalists are new to Biola this year. All the musical concepts, such as phrasing and dynamics, had to be reviewed until everyone had the same ideas. This resulting unity was apparent in the band's performances throughout the year.

During Missionary Conference this year the band toured in Arizona. While representing Biola and exposing audiences to the university, the band had unique opportunities to display both the musical and spiritual dedication which they developed through hours of practice under the direction and inspiration of their director, Mr. Ray Lutke, and band president, Mike Ogden.

ENSEMBLES

Classics to Jazz

Biola University's music ensembles have set forth a standard of quality. To achieve this measure of excellence, the Chamber Orchestra, Brass Quintet, and the Jazz Band spent many long hours in diligent practice. Their efforts proved profitable in several performances as their music soothed and exhilarated the souls of audiences both on and off campus.

COLLEGE SINGERS

Worship in Song

One of the choral groups which represents Biola University is the College Singers, under the direction of Mr. Loren Wiebe. The main objective of the group is to incorporate music in worship. This year the College Singers performed mainly sacred and classical selections during Thursday worship chapels.

Experienced musicians and amateurs alike comprised the group of thirty vocalists, who gathered together to unite individual talents in corporate praise.

CHORALE

Ministering to the Soul

Although the Biola Chorale is well known for a reputation of excellence, to all its members and those who hear them the group is characterized by a love for God and a family-like unity which is immediately evident.

From the diversity of "A Worship Celebration" in October, to the zany antics of the "Third Half," the chorale not only entertained but ministered to the soul, through lyric and melody. At Christmas the excitement of Christ's birth was portrayed in Hodie by R. Vaughn Williams with orchestra. The excitement spread through Northern California where the chorale toured in the spring. Both social activities strengthen the fellowship and encourage spiritual growth among chorale members, who regard chorale as one of the highlights of their college years!

I urge you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, to present your bodies a living and holy sacrifice, acceptable to God, which is your spiritual service of worship.

Biola University: Expanding the Mind

Biola College, Inc. is definitely past history. The old familiar name has a rather obsolete ring to it anymore, and the old insignia looks almost nostalgic now. To be sure, the name is no longer a sufficient representation of the broad spectrum of academic pursuits and advanced programs which currently comprise the school at 13800 Biola Avenue.

Indeed, we are now Biola University.

After much careful analysis and evaluation, the Board of Trustees and the administration initiated the appropriate transitional procedures which were necessary to the establishment of university status for Biola. Although the institution officially became known as Biola University July 1, 1981, the previous structure of the school was strikingly comparable to that of a university. The decision to adopt a university format grew out of the pattern of administration which began in 1972 at which time Biola College, Talbot Theological Seminary and Rosemead School of Professional Psychology were united under the corporate classification of Biola College, Inc.

Distinctives Remain Constant

The Christian distinctives to which Biola has been committed since its inception remain constant as the highest priorities of the institution. Without question, Biola University stands firm on a solid biblical foundation.

The purpose of Biola University in a broad perspective is to educate Christian men and women in order to produce graduates who are competent in their field of study, knowledgeable in biblical studies and earnest Christians equipped to serve the Christian community and society at large. This statement of purpose applies to Talbot Theological Seminary, Rosemead School of Psychology and the undergraduate school of arts, sciences and professions in equal measure.

Diversified Unity, the Essence of Biola

In light of Biola's new university status, it would be well for the individual constituencies of each school to know more about their colleagues, contemporaries and superiors throughout the institution. While the programs of each school remain distinct, we are nonetheless united under the university framework. A sense of unity and coherence is essential to the university concept and a better understanding of the current structure and functions of Biola.

From College to University, Biola has retained its distinctive style.

The undergraduate school of arts, sciences and professions is the outgrowth of an academic and Christian tradition that officially began in 1908. Historically, the institution has been dedicated to the education of men and women for distinctive Christian service. In earlier years, the curriculum was composed primarily of Bible courses. The school was then known as The Bible Institute of Los Angeles, the name from which the familiar acronym "Biola" was derived.

The Bible Institute, which grew out of two Bible study and soul winning clubs, became a reality in the fall of 1907 under the leadership of Rev. T.C. Horton and Mr. Lyman Stewart. The first permanent organization took shape in 1908 when Mr. Stewart was elected to serve as Biola's first president. By 1912, the school had grown in its outreach and constituency substantially enough to call

Dr. Reuben A. Torrey to assume the responsibilities of the Bible Institutes first dean. Later this same year, the school purchased permanent quarters at the corner of Sixth and Hope Streets in downtown Los Angeles. Under the leadership of Dr. Louis T. Talbot, the Bible Institute program was expanded in 1936 to become a four year course leading to degrees in theology, Christian education and sacred music. In 1949 the curriculum was expanded even more in response to the needs of the Christian community to include work leading to a Bachelors degree. It was at this time that the Bible Institute was renamed Biola College. Since that time, the college has grown in both academic quality and diversity into what is now the thriving undergraduate school of Biola University which offers nearly thirty different major fields of study that culminate in Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science degrees.

Talbot Theological Seminary

As Biola moved into the decade of the 1950s, it became increasingly obvious that there was a real need for a three year seminary program to follow the college degree. With this in mind, in 1952 the Board of Directors instituted a three year program leading to the Bachelor of Divinity degree. This program came to be known as Talbot Theological Seminary.

Talbot now offers course work which leads to the degree Master of Divinity as well as Master of Arts degrees in Christian Education, Biblical Studies, Theological Studies, Missions and Ministry. Also in 1977 Talbot initiated the Doctor of Ministry program for those individuals holding the M.Div. degree who are interested in attaining a higher level of excellence in the practice of ministry.

The record compiled by Talbot Seminary alumni has vindicated all of its degree programs. The seminary has endeavored to keep its finger on the pulse of the times, and each step in its expansion has been in response to specific needs. The measure of success in this is evident in the fact that Talbot graduates are serving as missionaries on all the major continents of the world, as instructors in Christian institutions of higher learning across the country, and as local pastors and Christian education directors in fruitful churches.

Talbot is an interdenominational seminary which is thoroughly committed to the proclamation of the great historic doctrines of the Christian church. It is the main purpose of the seminary to train and graduate students characterized by practical Christian service, missionary and evangelistic zeal and an adequate knowledge of the Scriptures.

COMMANDMENT CONCEPTS

Rosemead School of Psychology

Rosemead School of Psychology is the outgrowth of the vision and planning of several psychologists and Christian leaders who saw the need for a school that would train professional psychologists with a Christian commitment. Preliminary efforts to develop such a school began in 1968 when authorization was given by the State of California to grant the M.A. and Ph.D. degrees through the Rosemead Graduate School of Psychology. In 1970, Rosemead inaugurated its full academic program.

In 1977 the decision was made to bring Rosemead's graduate programs into affiliation with Biola College and to relocate the school on Biola's La Mirada campus. Since that time, Rosemead has functioned as an integral part of Biola College, Inc. and now as one of the major schools within Biola University.

Rosemead's major educational distinctives are its strong professional training orientation and its goal of relating the data and concepts of psychology to those of Christian theology. Since both psychology and theology address the human condition, Rosemead's faculty believes there is a great deal to be gained by an interdisciplinary study of the nature of persons. Consequently, all students take a series of theology courses and seminars designed to integrate psychological and theological concepts of human functioning.

While recognizing that the disciplines of psychology and theology have some very different data and methodologies, their overlapping content, goals and principles provide rich resources for interdisciplinary study. Issues growing out of these overlapping concerns cover a range of topics related to research, theory and clinical practice. By encouraging this study, Rosemead is attempting to train psychologists to have a broad view of human nature that includes a sensitivity to the spiritual dimension of life. Through its interaction with members of the Christian community, Rosemead is also committed to demonstrating to the church the significant contributions an understanding of the data and methods of psychology can make to the church's role of ministering to the whole person.

At the heart of Rosemead's training program is the opportunity to develop the personal insights and skills necessary for effective integration in a wide range of settings. In order to meet this need, Rosemead has developed a planned sequence of experiences designed to promote personal growth and competency in interpersonal relationships as well as specific clinical skills.

To facilitate such experiences while assisting individuals, Rosemead maintains an outpatient psychological service and training center, the Rosemead Counseling Service. This clinic has one branch on campus and another branch located in Rosemead, California. Both offer a wide range of psychological services to adults and children while providing excellent training opportunities for students.

The Master of Arts degree Rosemead offers serves largely as a stepping stone for students who are planning to enter the doctoral programs. Rosemead offers the Doctor of Psychology in Clinical Psychology, a degree designed to train practitioners in professional psychology. Rosemead also grants the Ph.D. in Psychology, a degree which signifies the completion of a course of study designed to prepare students for careers combining professional and academic activities.

In the spring of 1981, Rosemead's Doctor of Psychology program received provisional accreditation by the American Psychological Association. This classification is the highest form of accreditation in psychological education circles.

Last year Biola's undergraduate psychology joined forces with Rosemead's formerly exclusive graduate programs. The two which had previously functioned as separate entities now comprise a more functional and comprehensive program.

Realizing Increased Potential

In the university setting, Biola's historic commitment to challenging the minds of Christian students with professional, stimulating academic courses that are thoroughly integrated with biblical truth may now be realized in even greater dimensions. As we stand on the threshold of this new phase in Biola's development, the potential seems almost limitless. Through the expanded opportunities that Biola University affords, students can definitely expect to learn more of what it means to love the Lord with one's whole mind.

Applying Mark 12:30 in the University Setting

As Biola's program continues to develop within the university structure, and as diversified opportunities which will better assist us as students in expanding our minds increase, we at Biola will do well to consider anew the importance of committing our minds to the Lord. As Mark 12:30 makes clear, the Christian is to love the Lord with his whole mind. It is important to note that this commandment applies to all believers and transcends all degrees of intelligence and academic training. The Christian of primitive, aboriginal background as well as the believer who holds a Ph.D. are to love the Lord with the same complete measure of mental devotion. Yet, for those of us who are actively involved in academic pursuits, specifically as students, faculty and administrators of Biola University, this directive to love the Lord with all our minds seems to bear special significance. By virtue of the emphasis we place on the mind by the very nature of our academic involvement on the university level, it is especially important that we have a firm grasp of this concept.

The Essence of the Mind

Before progressing further, it would be beneficial for us to define the meaning of the term "the mind." To begin with, in essence the mind is best thought of as a capacity rather than as a physical element. While the mind is in fact intimately associated with the brain, the mind is not limited to the confines of that physical organ. Most accurately, the mind is best classified as part of the spiritual or immaterial aspect of our human composition. The mind is that immaterial capacity which enables a person to perceive, comprehend, remember and make decisions. We employ all of these processes in order to effect learning and real internalization of knowledge.

Commitment of the Mind Outlined

Loving God with one's whole mind as an act of commitment involves being careful to bring honor to the Lord through the entire scope of our intellectual abilities, ranging from the choices and decisions we make to the general nature of our thoughts and intentions. In addition to the fact that such a frame of mind is pleasing to the Lord, it also serves to benefit the believer, for as Isaiah 26:3 reads, "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on Thee, because he trusteth in Thee."

The Significance of Diligence

As Christian students and educators we should above all desire to love the Lord with all our minds. In addition, we should seek to demonstrate that commitment by maintaining our thought lives and rational abilities according to the guidelines set forth in God's Word. Yet, as those who are occupied with the substantial amount of mental activity which comes as part of our involvement with higher education, we can grow and benefit even more by demonstrating the devotion of our minds to the Lord in still another way — that of academic diligence.

If we are indeed serious about loving the Lord with our whole minds, it seems logical that we should also be interested in knowing more about Him and the universe He created. With added insights into the intricacies and wonders He has fashioned, we cannot help but marvel and love Him all the more. The understanding gained from study and investigation can serve to expand our faith as well as our minds. Indeed, God has given us minds that we might use them.

While by no means does the Lord expect a 4.0 grade point average from every believer, He does expect each of us to make consistent efforts according to the capacities He has given us in whatever we pursue, including academic activities. As 2 Timothy 2:15 urges, "Be diligent to present yourself approved to God as a workman who does not need to be ashamed, handling accurately the word of truth."

Pursuing Excellence at Biola

Last Fall, in Biola's charter convocation ceremony as a university, mathematics professor Dr. Ed Thurber challenged all those in attendance to strive for the utmost degree of excellence in all areas of performance at Biola. If we are truly consistent in our educational efforts, it is quite likely that our commitment to loving the Lord with all our minds will further motivate us to aspire to thoroughly excellent performance in our chosen academic fields. As Christians we should consistently pursue the very best possible measure of achievement in light of Colossians 3:17 which charges us to do everything in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ. Can we rationalize placing the name of the One who gave His absolute Best for us upon mediocre activities, inferior products, or for the matter — upon half-hearted academic attempts?

To Whom Much I Given . . .

As we work through the new challenges which Biola has made available this year as a university, as as we anticipate those advancements which lie ahead, we need to remember

Through the campus branch of the Rosemead Counseling Service, psychology students receive first-hand training experiences.

On the first of July, 1981, Biola University became a reality.

Luke 12:48 which assures us "that from everyone who is given much, shall much be required, and to whom they entrusted much, of him they will ask the more." With this in mind, let us rise to the responsibilities which accompany such resources and accomplish with excellence those things which the Lord places before us.

University Expands Minds, Commitments

For Christian scholars, particularly in the distinctive, thoroughly biblical context of Biola University, opportunities abound for demonstrating the commitment of our minds to the Lord. Let's allow that commitment to motivate us to employ these opportunities to their fullest advantage as we seek to expand both our minds and our love for the Lord Jesus Christ.

DR. CHASE

Comments from Our President

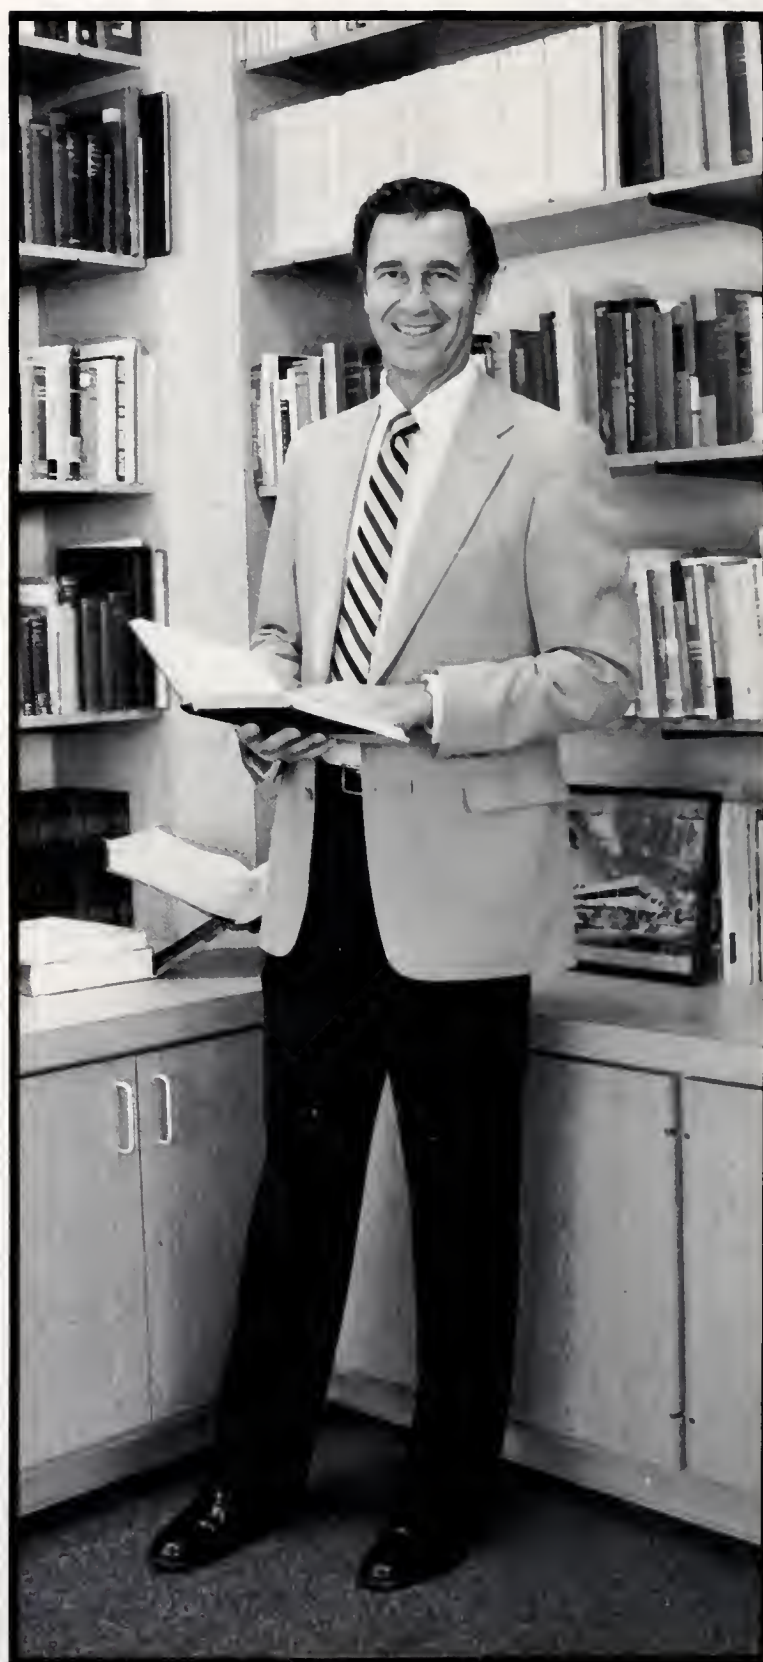

Education is many things. We learn from new relationships, opportunities and experiences as well as from new funds of information. We are motivated by professors, intriguing ideas and the thrill of discovery. The challenge of communication encourages us to write, to speak and to express ourselves through the arts and various forms of service.

What is distinctive about education at Biola University? Our purpose is to glorify God in the life we live and the service we render. That purpose finds impetus in our study of God's Word, in reflecting on our needs and God's goodness to us and in the study of the arts, sciences and professional areas of interest to us in the light of our Christian faith.

Education here is total — total commitment to a God of infinite power and love. And total commitment to use the God-given gift of intelligence to explore the richness of this world and to serve the needs of its inhabitants.

ADMINISTRATION

Directors Oversee Transitions

This year has proven to be especially challenging for Biola's administrators as they have worked to effect transitions necessary to Biola's new status as a university. A variety of changes have demanded substantial administrative attention since the official university changeover in July, 1981.

The President's Staff, comprised of Dr. Fischer, Vice President for Academic Affairs; Dr. Crawford, Vice President for Business and Financial Affairs; Evelyn Gibson, Director for University Relations; and Dr. Morris, Dean for University Student Affairs, continues to oversee the development of new policies and programs within the four major divisions of the university.

BIBLICAL STUDIES AND THEOLOGY

Major Encourages Growth

Coursework in the Department of Biblical Studies and Theology is central to the undergraduate curriculum at Biola University. Every graduating student has at least 30 units in a variety of courses in our department, from surveys of the Old and New Testaments and surveys of standard systematic theology to upper division elective courses dealing with specific areas of biblical and theological study.

Our department seeks to provide every student with a basic Bible literacy and a fundamental understanding of Christian theology and values. We want all graduates to feel themselves competent to serve in the Christian community effectively, while at the same time realizing they need to continue to grow as Christians and persons the rest of their lives.

The person who majors in Biblical Studies and Theology has a choice of four different "Emphases": Old Testament, New Testament, the Bible and a Pre-Seminary Emphasis. Each is designed to help meet the needs of students who have different goals in view — anywhere from effective church work, missions work, para-church work, seminary and even university work in biblical studies.

The Bible Major at Biola University is a student who desires to serve Christ in some biblically related field. He or she is usually a serious student who is willing to work hard, who loves people and who wants to minister to people in this country and around the world.

INTERCULTURAL STUDIES

Exploring Ministry Methods

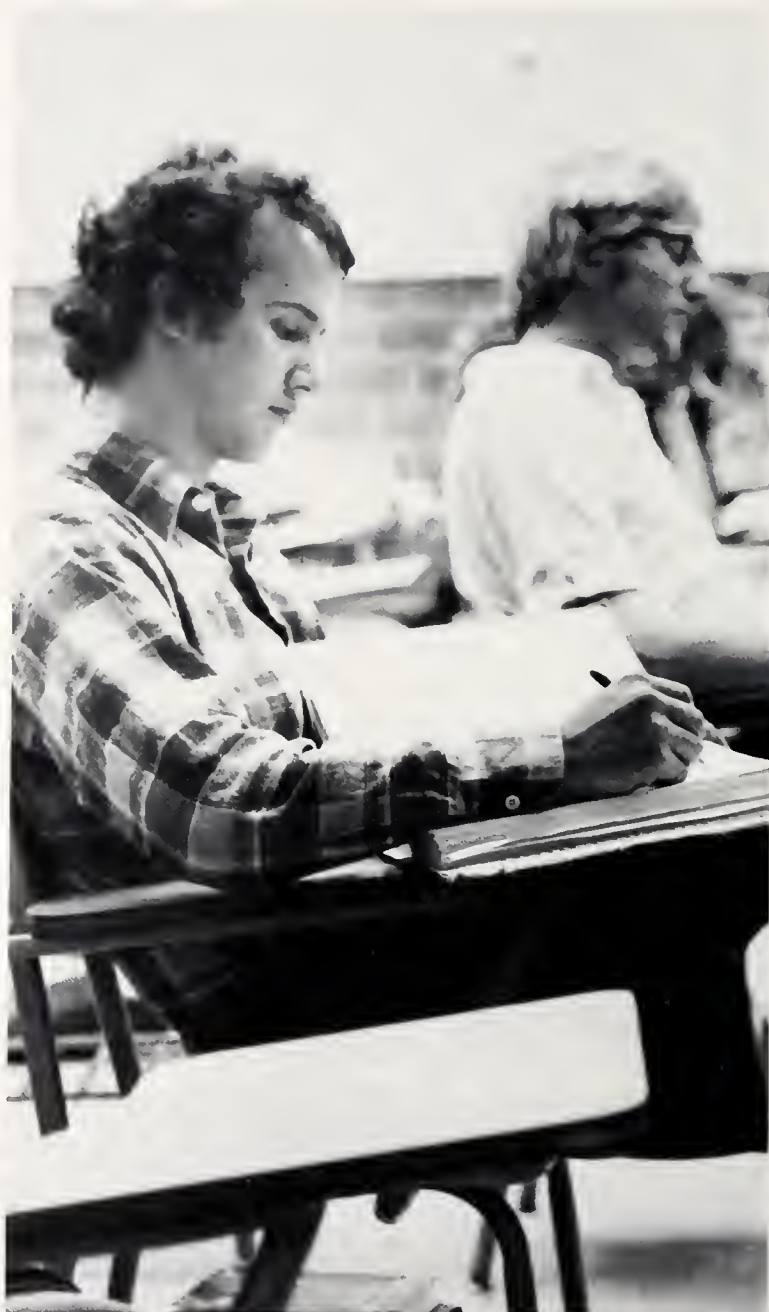

What is Intercultural Studies? Intercultural Studies courses provide understanding of intercultural problems and develop Christian perspectives toward them. They bring about an awareness of one's own cultural makeup as well as an understanding of the culture of the other person. They teach methods for Christian ministry across cultural barriers. Intercultural Studies opens doors for more effective sharing of our faith. Studies in ICS enable the students to be knowledgeable of the theological, historical, sociological, anthropological and linguistic issues of the cross-cultural communication of the Gospel. We emphasize understanding human beings and culture, linguistic and cultural diversity, and relating meaningfully to people with different cultural backgrounds.

Who is interested in the ICS Major? In this interdisciplinary major we train students for many types of cross-cultural work: missions, diplomatic work, translation, working with international or American ethnic groups, overseas work, leadership training, church planting and evangelism.

What are our distinctives? Each member of the faculty in this department has served on a mission field and is committed to the task of making disciples of every nation. Majors gain practical experience in analyzing the Church to understand its growth patterns, learning a spoken language, being involved in participant observation, and summer work in missions. As a department, we serve the university community by working alongside of the Student Missionary Union in all of their activities, teaching the course on the Book of Acts, and offering General Cultural Anthropology which fulfills the social science requirement in general education.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

Specialized Biblical Teaching

The Christian Education Department is committed to the preparation of men and women for serving Jesus Christ in educational ministries of the church. The church is, of course, the worldwide body of Christ as well as the local body of believers on the corner. Educational ministries focus on the teaching of the Bible to all ages. Persons trained in Christian education serve in church staff positions or with para-church agencies.

Christian education is a multifaceted discipline. It shares with education in the teaching and learning process, with Biblical studies in the presentation of the Word, with psychology and communication in interpersonal relationships of the participants, and with sociology in the group and family contexts. While interaction with other disciplines is important, the heart of Christian education is teaching the Bible in a relevant way so that lives are transformed into the image of Christ.

With a wide variety of specializations, the Christian education major offers training on both the bachelor's level and as a preparation for graduate work in a variety of ministry fields.

MUSIC

Providing Excellence in Training

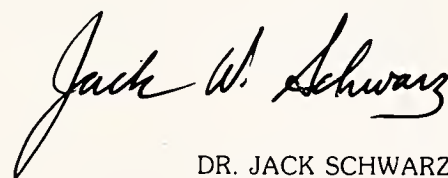

The Music Department of Biola University functions both as a supporting department in the liberal arts program and also as a department of professional training for young Christian musicians. Our basic aim is that of providing excellence in musical training in an atmosphere of Christian commitment which we consider to be the basic foundation for all of life.

The Music Department offers both the Bachelor of Arts degree and the Bachelor of Music degree. Within the latter it is possible to concentrate in applied music, composition or music education.

The climate of learning is enhanced by facilities and equipment of high quality. From the Schantz pipe organ and the Steinway concert grand piano to the equipment in rehearsal and practice rooms, it is our endeavor to provide the student with that which will assist his study.

It is also our fortune to be served by an outstanding faculty. They are not only men and women of exceptional professional capacity, but also individuals concerned with the personal needs of students.

Students in the Music Department must be capable of giving themselves to serious musical study and achieving a high degree of performance proficiency. We are fortunate to have such students.

ART

Reflecting Faith Creatively

As in all programs at Biola, it is the philosophy of bringing together the Christian faith with the learning experience that gives distinctive educational value to the art program. Faculty and students seek to understand the most effective and creative method of reflecting their faith in God.

Because God has led each individual student and faculty member to Biola, the faculty sees itself with a responsibility to students and to the Lord to provide the very best education possible. Professors spend time with students discussing their individual projects — learning together. Prayer before classes and time for personal interaction is a pivotal part of education as expressed within the department.

Availability of professional Christian artists and designers in the Los Angeles area who are challenged by the Christian perspective of art and its expression in commercial fields does much to enhance the art program at Biola.

COMMUNICATION

Developing Interpersonal Skills

What is communication? Certainly communication involves the response to both verbal and non-verbal symbols. At Biola University we are concerned about the study of human communication. Such a study opens several areas of investigation. Public and Organizational Communication, our newest area, permits students to wrestle with issues relating to the ethics of communication. Speech Pathology equips students to pursue careers in working with the speech handicapped. Drama provides an opportunity for students to develop their creativity in areas like set-design as well as to participate in actual theatrical performances. Radio-Television-Film explores not only the intricacies of technological hardware, but also equips students to apply communication skills in the actual writing and producing of scripts.

So whether one is participating in our nationally ranked forensic program or working in our speech clinic with a child with a hearing loss or designing a layout for the campus newspaper, our goal as a Christian university is to develop the interpersonal skills that will communicate to others that they are indeed created in the image of God. In a dehumanizing society we want our graduates to treat others as persons and not as objects.

Department of Communication

ENGLISH

Literary Studies Increase Sensitivity

English majors spend a few years wandering with their professors through some of the landmark works in Western literature. These “travels” help students develop an appreciation for the merits and beauties of art and expose them to the ideas, values and experiences of many great minds and cultures. As well as offering students a background in the history and development of literature, the English department attempts to show how the exploration of literature can increase a thoughtful Christian’s sensitivity to important ethical questions and concerns.

The department assesses literature from a variety of angles. For instance, Dr. Doland, Department Chairperson, gives an overview of the different philosophical approaches to the study of literature in her class on “Literary Criticism.” Several courses, such as Professor Shanebeck’s study of the novel, examine specific literary forms, while others, like Dr. Smith’s “Romanticism,” focus on a particular literary era or intellectual movement. Anyone desiring a complete change of pace can always explore the influence of literature in the mental and moral development of a child by venturing into Professor McGahey’s class on “Children’s Literature.”

Perhaps the most unique course offered by the department is the “English Seminar.” Here advanced majors and faculty meet in the informality of a faculty home to hear a student presentation on an important book. Students who successfully weather the challenge of giving a Seminar presentation enjoy the rare opportunity to “instruct their instructors.” All Seminars eventually fade into a time of casual discussion and refreshments.

Of course, most students become acquainted with the English department when taking everyone’s favorite course — “Criticism and Composition.” By struggling through a gauntlet of spelling errors, comma splices and logical fallacies, students strive to achieve coherence and grace in their writing.

HUMANITIES

Studies Provide Tools for Understanding Mankind

In an age when specialization is increasingly emphasized, the humanities provide opportunity for the student to acquire a broad knowledge.

In a society where we have seen materialistic concerns and technology dominate our culture, the humanities encourage the student's thinking through the moral, ethical, and spiritual dimensions of given issues.

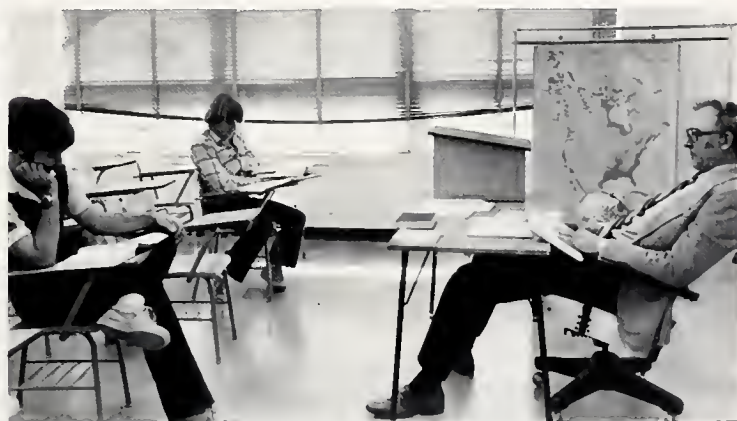

In a culture that is blind to pattern and order in human existence, the humanities open doors to aesthetic experience as a necessary expression of the creative nature of the human being and as an evidence of mankind's search for meaning.

The Humanities Major at Biola University is comprised of courses in language, literature, history, communication and philosophy. Each student's program is individually designed to facilitate study in a variety of interest areas.

Whether heading for seminary, preparing for teaching, or facing the general job market, the graduate with a Humanities Major goes out equipped by a course of study that has provided the knowledge and the tools for understanding mankind — its past, its aspirations, its relationships with self and society and with God.

BIOLA ABROAD

Europe Affords Adventure

Last September 17, thirty Biola students led by Dr. and Mrs. Reinhard Buss departed from Los Angeles International Airport to begin the adventure of Biola Abroad 1981.

After arriving in Frankfurt, Germany, the group was transported to the quaint town of Zwingenberg which became their home base. In between studying to meet the requirements of a demanding academic program, students visited German points of interest including Munich, Heidelberg, Rothenberg, Wurzburg Palace, the Cologne Cathedral and Wiess Kirche (the Meadow Church).

During their 12 weeks in Europe, the group visited five other countries as well. Belgium afforded Biolans several opportunities to interact with foreign students during a three-week stay at the Belgian Bible Institute. Students also visited Brussels, Brugge, Waterloo and the North Sea.

A special five day tour took the group to Holland and France. In Holland, students had a chance to enjoy the windmill dotted countryside on the way to Delft as well as unique visits to Anne Frank's attic home and Corrie Ten Boom's clock shop in Amsterdam. While in France, the group spent time in Paris touring the Louve, Notre Dame, the Eiffel Tower and Napoleon's Tomb.

Biolans found Switzerland to be an especially beautiful country. The towering Alps, crystal lakes and trees turned with autumn offered a spectacular setting for sightseeing and relaxing. Landscape of comparable grandeur characterized Austria, the last stop on the group's itinerary. Students toured the musical towns of Salzburg, home of the Trapp family and hence the locale for The Sound of Music, as well as the village of Oberndorf where the well known Christmas carol "Silent Night" originated.

Experiencing Europe through the 1981 Biola Abroad program provided each student with increased awareness and appreciation of other cultures, an expanded world-view and memories to last a lifetime.

HISTORY

Studying the Past, Gauging the Future

The history major, by its very nature brings the student into contact with a wide range of cultures, eras, and human experiences. Study of man's past gives one a broad perspective from which to consider the contemporary world and to gauge the directions of the emerging future. Those who have an interest in historical study but cannot major in it may opt for a minor under social sciences, or a concentration under the humanities, including classical studies.

The broader design of the program is to develop student's ability to think objectively, clearly, and critically in the context of their commitment to evangelical Christianity and biblical values. Development of skills, too, are stressed, and graduates can be confident of their ability to do research, write clear analytical reports, weigh conflicting evidence, synthesize data, and arrive at logical conclusions and recommendations. These uncommon qualities are strong selling points to any prospective employer, and these, moreover, give the Biola graduate an edge in whatever calling or profession he or she may seek, be it management, teaching, the ministry, missions, law, or government service.

Special features of the history major include active participation in Phi Alpha Theta, the national history honors society, in which the History Department received membership just this year.

Our History Honors Program is designed for those who want to excel, but that does not mean that all our activities are planned only for majors. Our fall and spring history lectures, open to the entire campus community, are geared for those who want to enter the gateway of history just because they enjoy learning something new about the past.

POLITICAL SCIENCE/PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION

Washington D.C. Offers Insights

Believing that Jesus Christ should be Lord in every area of our lives — personal, social, religious and “political” — the Biola University Political Science and Public Administration Department seeks to examine this central confession of our faith in the context of our discipline.

Since 1966 the Political Science Department has offered courses touching the critical political issues, institutions and personalities of the day. While there is not a major in political science at Biola, through the Political Science Department a B.S. in Public Administration is offered.

The Public Administration major is interdisciplinary within a political science and business administration framework and draws upon such study areas as economics, psychology and sociology.

This year, the twelve students in the major were instructed by a faculty of three individuals, all of whom practice daily in the field of public administration. Dr. Dave Peters, department chairman, is a La Mirada City Councilman and former Mayor of the City, as well as Chairman of the La Mirada Community Redevelopment Agency. Mr. William Holt is the City Manager of the City of Paramount and Mr. Brent Wallace is the Director of Personnel and Assistant City Administrator in the City of Santa Fe Springs.

The Political Science Department also directs the Washington, D.C. American Studies Internship Program. Biola students interested in government and politics may spend a semester in Washington, D.C., living in a Christian college residence and working in a U.S. Senator's or Congressman's office through the direction of the Christian College Coalition. For the past three years the American Studies Program has made possible this opportunity. Over 15 Biola students have taken this opportunity to examine, integrate, grow in their faith and gain firsthand insights into the dynamic political setting that is our nation's capitol.

The Political Science and Public Administration Department remains vitally interested in involving Biola University students in the community's and nation's political life.

BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

Large Major Stresses Ethics

The past decade has seen a rise on college campuses in what might be referred to as vocationally-oriented majors. At many schools, including Biola University, the business administration department leads the way among the rapidly growing majors. In part due to an increased student concern about finding a satisfying job in a tight market, this increase may also be attributable to the proliferation of many lucrative and challenging careers in business.

Critics of academic environments often charge that the collegiate experience is far removed from "real life." Biola's business department counters that criticism, as it seeks to give students a taste of the business world they will enter after graduation. Research 470, a required course intended to meet this goal, involves a semester-long analysis of a company. Working as a team of consultants might, a group of three to four students are assigned to a company management, economic and legal environment.

One of Biola's largest departments, with 275 students enrolled, the business major prepares students for a career in the business world. At present, three emphases are offered: general business; marketing, which is management rather than sales oriented; and accounting. According to Dr. Paul Buegler, associate professor of business and economics, the educational philosophy of the department is "to produce graduates who will go out into the business world very well educated in business management and in our Christian faith."

A major in business at Biola is actually a multifaceted education. Perhaps this is best summed up by Dr. Buegler. "We offer a business education of competitive quality to even the large universities. But we offer even more in the sense that we place a heavy emphasis on the moral, ethical and spiritual development of our students. That's what makes our program distinctive."

MATHEMATICS

Computer Option Offered

Mathematics has long held the attention and excited the curiosity of civilized man. It commands interest as a structure of great beauty, and it has ever increasing application in this age of technology. It is the basic language of the sciences, and the student's success in other fields often depends upon his or her ability and training in mathematics.

Over the last several years, Biola's Mathematics Department has broadened its offerings with the addition of courses in appointed areas. Most recently a computer science concentration has been added as one of the options in the mathematical sciences major.

During their four year journey through the major, students are expected to develop the ability to solve efficiently and with understanding a certain class of problems in each course. The ability to solve such problems is a major intellectual attainment.

Upon graduation, students have a broad background in the mathematical sciences which insures them a wide degree of latitude in the directions they can pursue. Graduates from the department have found success in graduate work, industry and teaching to name a few areas.

PHYSICAL SCIENCE

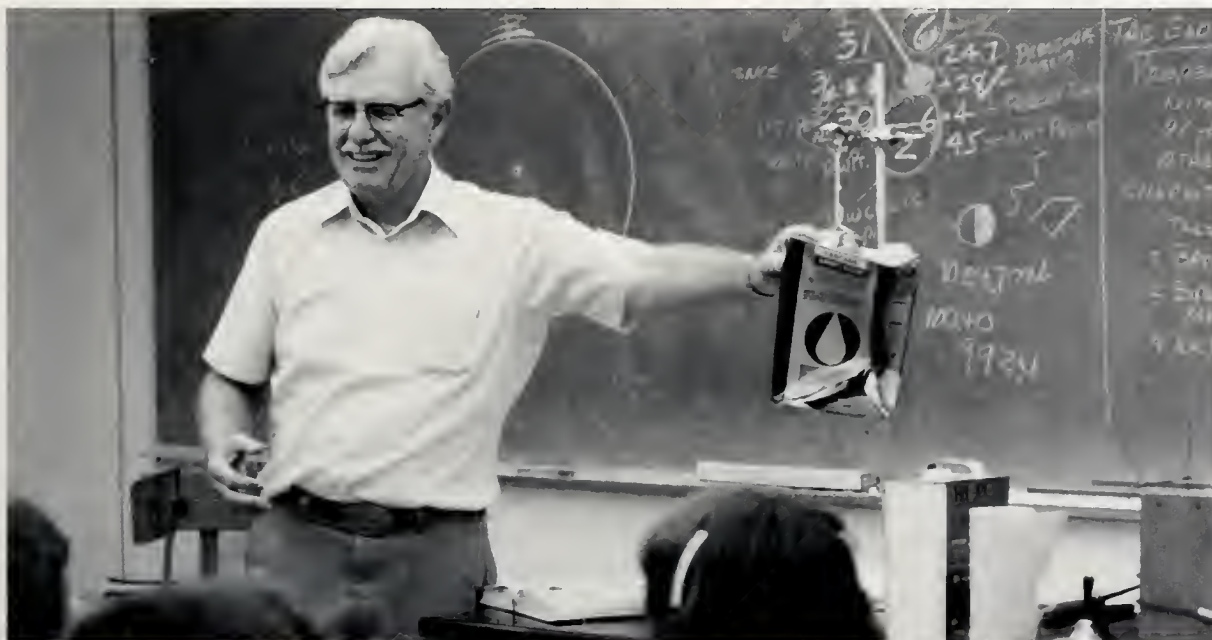

Grads Pursue Technical Fields

The Physical Science major is an interdisciplinary program designed to give the student a solid basis in the fields of physics, chemistry and mathematics. The program is built around a core curriculum which upon completion enables the student with his advisor to elect further course work to suit the student's interests and needs. The major serves as preparation for various professional schools such as engineering, secondary education and the medical and health fields. The student will also be prepared to enter graduate school in one of the many areas of the physical sciences. The basic knowledge and skills gained will enable the graduate to go directly into many technical fields.

Upon completion of the physical science major, it is intended that the student will understand and apply the basic laws and theories of the physical world; demonstrate an ability to do qualitative problem solving; apply the scientific methods to a research problem; demonstrate good laboratory technique and gain some technical skills in at least one area; know how to use the scientific literature for reference; and integrate scientific knowledge and theories with the Christian faith.

BIOLOGICAL SCIENCE

Emphasizing Practical Experience

The Biological Science Department has initiated some new, exciting programs this year. Dr. Albert Lin and two senior students researched the effects of heavy metals on smooth muscle contraction. Dr. Lin continued conducting individual research for a Chinese pharmaceutical company, Mr. Kuld and Mr. Eddington set up a new electron microscope facility including both scanning and transmission microscopes. This equipment is definitely a unique amenity among undergraduate programs at Christian Universities. In addition, I have pioneered an exciting concept in marine education; classes underwater. Using SCUBA as a research tool, marine ecology students conducted experiments on a weekly basis beneath the ocean's surface.

The Biological Science Department emphasizes practical experience. During Intersession an off-campus program was offered in Baja California, Mexico where students spent quality time in field research and outdoor education through a study of regional natural history. A new outdoor education major with the department serves to equip students with teaching skills and biological data in a camp setting. Many biology students work as teaching assistants in laboratory sessions within the program. Some work in off-campus laboratories as well. The pre-medical/dental practicum matches a senior student with a doctor or dentist for exposure in the practices of Christian professionals.

NURSING

Program Stresses Spiritual Care

Nursing lends itself very naturally to the integration of faith and learning. In the context of a Christian university, we have the freedom, indeed the responsibility to educate students to provide comprehensive nursing care that includes the spiritual dimension. Preparation to provide spiritual care and to consider ethical issues from a Christian perspective are the primary distinctives that set our program apart from secular nursing programs.

We seek to prepare liberally educated, committed and caring men and women who are confident and skilled in the areas of communication; assessment of health needs for individuals, families and communities; health teaching; problem-solving; decision-making; leadership and nursing research. We also seek to develop sensitivity to socio-cultural differences and similarities.

PSYCHOLOGY

Rosemead Undergraduate Program Seeks Premier Status

Biola's undergraduate psychology program experienced a growing and stretching time during our first year as a part of the expanded Rosemead School of Psychology. Combining forces with the graduate program in clinical psychology, we are working our way toward becoming one of the premier undergraduate programs operating from a distinctly Christian perspective. As such, our primary emphasis is our commitment to the biblical integration of faith and practice. We seek to understand and apply concepts drawn from the Scriptures as well as the broad spectrum of psychological theory and research. We have revised and strengthened our curriculum and now offer a strong core with opportunities for individualized emphases in keeping with personal educational and professional pursuits. Our goal is to provide our students with a sound foundation for specialized graduate study in psychology or training for other fields of human service.

We are excited about the added strength now present in the School of Psychology faculty, which is composed of professors who previously taught either graduate or undergraduate courses. Increased opportunities for interaction between the graduate and undergraduate students is seen as another feature that enhances our new organizational structure. It is anticipated that as a result of the university format, both the undergraduate and graduate programs will be strengthened.

SOCIOLOGY

Personal Involvement Stressed

The Sociology Department is structured to involve the faculty and students both theoretically and practically. We not only teach concepts but we also explain the "How" of personal involvement. We believe in life preparation for professions in the field and help ministries for both the professional and the lay person.

The faculty has been selected with this thought in mind. Each instructor is a specialist in his field of teaching ministry. We attempt to convey the thought that we are all learners; all learning more of what sociology is all about. As learners we are all striving to know our discipline well in order to be prepared to serve others through our selected professions.

Our department is not a large one (45-50 majors), but this has been a distinct advantage for us as we are able to become personally involved with students. We have a choice selection of students who are willing to serve and become involved with society as contributors.

We as faculty and students agree that "Sociology" is people.

EDUCATION

Teachers are Needed

This is the message that the Education Department seeks to spread. It is hard for many to believe, but true. The rapid growth of Christian schools and the projected shortage of public school teachers in the near future is the cause of the great need. During the last few years, many more notices of vacancies have been received than could be filled. This trend is expected to continue in the future as well.

Biola teacher candidates are sought by both Christian and public schools. The teacher education program has an excellent reputation because of the fine work of graduates over the years.

Biola prepares both elementary and secondary teachers, the latter in eleven different subject areas. The Education Department is approved to recommend teacher candidates for certification both by the State of California and the Association of Christian Schools International. The department also offers graduate work leading to clear credentials and Master of Arts degrees in Education and Christian School Administration.

Not only are teachers needed throughout the United States; there are many teaching opportunities overseas as well. The Education Department continually receive requests from mission boards for their schools, and foreign countries send requests as well. Such schools are similar to those in this country, and instruction is conducted in English.

Teachers are needed! Spread the word.

RECREATION AND CAMP ADMINISTRATION

Practical Training from Classroom to Campsite

The Recreation and Camp Administration major is designed to assist students who are seeking various vocational opportunities in people-serving professions. The RCA department feels it is important to provide each individual with both practical skills and experience as well as a broad theoretical base — all integrated with the Word of God.

Recreation and Camp Administration majors seem to be people who are full-of-life, have a love for the outdoors, enjoy people, experience beauty in both the large and minute aspects of creation, sing loudly in their hearts, and realize the ministry and the importance of reaching out to others whether through organized recreation programs or in the camp setting.

This idea of reaching out to others can be illustrated in the words of one RCA major who said, "My reason for going into the Recreation and Camping ministry is that while in God's Creation and while helping people to enjoy life, I see walls people have built around themselves start to crumble. People become approachable. I cannot think of a better time to reach others for Christ than when their walls are down. This type of ministry is very special to me and I count it an honor to be used by God in this way."

We, the administration and faculty of RCA, feel that our majors are unique and special. They are warm, caring, loving people who take the time to enrich lives all around them. We are privileged to work with such students.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Developing Soul and Strength

The Department of Physical Education and Athletics serves several purposes at Biola University. First of all, we teach activity classes for the university which are essential to the total development of Biola students. We support the concept of, and work toward developing the intellectual, spiritual, and physical dimensions of each person.

Within the department we also teach the specialized courses needed to prepare men and women in the field of physical education and coaching. Our students continue in many professional areas, especially teaching and coaching in both private and public sectors.

Thirdly, the department conducts an intercollegiate athletic program for men and women. The records of these teams speak for themselves in terms of victories as well as the development of interpersonal relationships among all concerned. Most faculty members coach teams as well as teach within their area of expertise. Intercollegiate athletics touches many lives through athletic training programs, the sports information office and other support personnel of the department.

Strength: Practice and Performance

By LAURIE KATZ

Hey man, where are you going?"
"I gotta run."
"You're crazy; it's 5:00 in the morning!"
"I know, I sometimes think I'm crazy, too."
"Then why keep it up?"
"Got to. That's what it takes to be a winner."

What does it take to be a winner? We watch professional athletes run so smoothly, shoot so accurately, throw so perfectly, hit so consistently, and it looks so easy. Yet we only see the product, not the process they have gone through to reach such perfection.

The road travelled to obtain that perfection is aptly called 'Practice Avenue', and is 99% of the way to 'Performance Circle'. Thus, one's degree of performance is predetermined by one's measure of practice. Therefore, the athlete must tackle practice with all of his strength, realizing that perseverance in practice is vital to the pursuit of perfection.

Practice Procedure

Practice can be broken down into three areas: strength as applied to weaknesses, strength as applied to teamwork, and strength as applied to preparation.

First, strength must be applied to weaknesses, for it is in practice that failure is dealt with. One must smooth out quirks, correct bad habits, and examine poor strategy. It is a pruning process that requires both mental and physical determination. Breaking bad habits and recognizing poor strategy is difficult and time consuming. Constant repetition, humbling advice from coaches, hours of draining exercise and observation of correct performance are all components of perfecting area of weakness. Only strength and perseverance allow one to endure such circumstances.

Strength must also be applied in the area of teamwork. Learning to work with one another and supporting each other in success and failure often requires extra effort and stamina. However, team strength depends upon team unity and the ability to face both victory and loss without attributing the fame or the blame to one individual. This strength as a team comes through interaction both on and off the court or the field. Through hours of practice, scattered individuals develop into a team, a strong force that moves naturally as one unit. Eventually, teammates become extensions of one another to the point that one automatically knows the position and function of another. Mental strength is needed as well to overcome petty differences, personality conflicts and selfishness. A strong team unity begins in practice and is perfected in competition.

Strength as applied to preparation is the third aspect of practice. Learning new plays, moves and methods; predicting the strategies of opponents and preparing the most effective offense and defense to combat them all require undaunted strength and determination. Questions such as "Where will they strike?" "How can we best defend ourselves?" and "How can we best pursue them?" are important in preparation. It involves pushing one's self that extra mile even when fighting total exhaustion. It is essential that one prepares to be as powerful and competitive as possible.

Practice Personalized

Practice is not only reserved for athletes and the otherwise talented, but rather it is a perfecting tool for everyone. As Christians it should be our desire to strive for perfection also. We are challenged to "be perfect as your heavenly Father is perfect" (Matthew 5:48), and we are promised that if we endure we "may be perfect and complete lacking in nothing" (James 1:4).

How do we as Christians begin to approach this perfection? Consider athletic practice as an analogy. Just as athletes must seek to correct areas of weakness, Christians must also exercise self-discipline. Each of us is aware of temptations to which we are especially susceptible. How do we succeed in overcoming these? Temptations are overcome by practicing that which we know to be right and by not dwelling on weaknesses. Ephesians exhorts us, "In reference to your former manner of life, you lay aside the old self, which is being corrupted . . . and be renewed in the Spirit of your minds, and put on the new self" (4:22-24a). For instance, "let him who steals steal no longer; but rather let him labor" (9:28a). Just as athletes must smooth out quirks and break bad habits by learning correct forms, so too must Christians perfect their weaknesses by replacing sinful behavior with actions that are honorable.

COMMANDMENT CONCEPTS

Secondly, athletes must strive to be selfless in creating team unity. And, in the same manner that athletes recognize their greatest strength in unity, so also must we as Christians recognize the strength afforded us in the oneness of the Body of Christ. Romans 12:5 reminds us that "we, who are many, are one body in Christ, and individually members of one another." We are teammates in God's game and cannot survive or thrive without the love, encouragement, and support of fellow believers. We are warned not to think more highly of ourselves (Romans 12:3) and exhorted to remember "that there should be no division in the body, but that the members should have the same care for one another" (1 Corinthians 12:25). In practicing our Christianity let us not forget that much of our strength lies in our unity as believers.

Finally, we must remember that strong efforts must be made in preparation. Athletes often operate defensively while trying to predict the attacks of their opponents. We too have opponents — the flesh, the world, and Satan. We must set up our offense and defense so as not to be caught by these opposing forces. In regard to the flesh, we must recognize trouble spots and avoid them just as a wrestler protects his weak side so as not to get pinned. We must also beware of non-Christians that seek to cause us to compromise our standards. And, Christ warns us, "Be of sober spirit, be on the alert. Your adversary, the devil, prowls about like a roaring lion, seeking someone to devour" (Peter 5:8). In order to compete we must make sure our own skills are adequate and that we "Put on the full armor of God, that you may be able to stand firm against the schemes of the devil" (Ephesians 6:11). We should also recognize that one of our greatest weapons is the

Sarah Grant struggles to the hoop amidst opposing teammates.

Word of God. "For the Word of God is living and active and sharper than any two-edged sword, and piercing as far as the division of soul and spirit, of both joints and marrow, and able to judge the thoughts and intentions of the heart" (Hebrews 4:12).

Practice Pinned Down

As he prepares for competition, the athlete must participate in a daily workout. Depending on the sport, this workout includes a variety of drills and exercises designed to promote knowledge of the game, strength and endurance, as well as coordination, agility and flexibility. A thorough workout will address every skill that the athlete needs in order to play effectively.

Each Christian as well should be involved in a daily workout, a practice session in which his knowledge of the "game plan" of Christianity is heightened and his playing skills are strengthened. Just as a regular workout is essential to the winning performance of the team player, whether on the field or on the court, so also is it necessary for each member of the body of Christ to maintain his own "exercise program as he moves within the arena of life. The godly men and women we look up to, both in the biblical account and in our own setting, demonstrate their awareness of the importance of consistency in spiritual things. David rose early to seek God and described the righteous man as one who meditates on God's Word day and night. Paul said, "I press on toward the goal for the prize of the upward call of God in Christ Jesus" (Philippians 3:14). A contemporary example, George Mueller, was well known for his conscientious prayer life. His journals record 50,000 answers to prayer. His experience shows that the believer who is consistent in spiritual exercise will experience tangible results.

Practice With Purpose

A good coach knows not only the special abilities and strengths of each of his players, but is also keenly aware of which areas need to be changed and improved in his performance. He initiates a workout program suited to the needs of each individual, designed to sharpen strengths and correct flaws. The workout is an ongoing process for the dedicated athlete, and his coach will adapt the session as each player's performance improves.

The best coaches know the players' abilities and handicaps better than the players themselves do, and though an athlete may disagree with the coach, feeling that such a difficult, strenuous or time-consuming workout is "unjust punishment," the coach is firm, knowing that the challenge will produce a stronger, more capable individual. In many cases, the coach knows the amount of challenge and kind of workout players need because he himself has played the game and experienced what it costs to be the best, knowing the struggles involved.

Those drafted into the Kingdom of God are similarly coached on to new levels of strength and skill as they strive to imitate Jesus Christ, Whose performance was perfect in all respects. God, because He created man, and because He is omniscient in nature, is infinitely aware of the abilities and disabilities of each of His children, and brings situations and challenges into their lives which, though they may seem unfair at times, will ultimately make them more like Christ.

Unlike those involved in the multi-million-dollar business of professional athletics, God the Father does not judge His players' performances on the basis of whether or not they "win," or by how they compare to other players. He sees them in entirely singular terms regarding their abilities and output. Though the responsibility of the Christian is great, and demands wholehearted and unreserved commitment, he is not asked to be successful, but first to be faithful. In his first letter to Timothy, Paul says, "I thank Christ Jesus our Lord, who has strengthened me, because He considered me faithful, putting me into service" (1 Timothy 1:12).

Rather, God in His acute awareness of the human experience, has not only provided a perfect example for us to imitate and to learn from, but also He has promised to perfect and complete those who belong to Him. Jesus Christ, the Word, "became flesh and dwelt among us," so that we would have One Who was fully God, but Who also shared in our human experience. He fully understands the game of life and the challenges each believer faces, and longs to see each one running the race to win.

SOCCER

Team Wins 1st Title

The 1981 soccer season proved to be Biola's finest ever in terms of accomplishments. The Eagles defeated both Westmont and Fresno Pacific in overtime games during the NAIA district III playoffs. The team won their first ever district title and the right to play in the NAIA national competition in Illinois. At nationals, Biola played two tough games and tied 4-4 with the previously undefeated, untied Indiana Tech team. Overall, Biola was 9-9-3 and 5-2-1 in league play.

WOMEN'S SOCCER CLUB

First Year Proves Enthusiastic

The first official season of the Biola women's soccer club could be best described as "enthusiastic." The team, led by Coach Dave Barkley and assisted by Jeff Sturgis, was basically comprised of many girls with little or no experience in competitive soccer. However, with determined attitudes the girls were prepared to work hard to improve their skills and learn to realize their maximum potential on the field.

The women's club looked strong in their first game against UC Riverside and with time, hard work and game experience the team continued to build strength throughout the second half of their season.

The club's desire to grow in unity and to be an example of Christ to the other teams has made this women's soccer season truly profitable.

MEN'S SOCCER CLUB

Team Breaks Even

With a team comprised of five returning players and eight new members, the Men's Soccer Club broke even in a 3-3 season.

The team was led by captain Phil Braun, who appears to be destined for varsity status next season. Braun was the club's high scorer with five goals and numerous assists. Center midfielder Mike Jones followed Braun, scoring three goals.

For the second consecutive season, the club matched their rivals by tying both games with the Westmont Warriors.

Dave Barkley coached the team in a highly competitive season and encouraged an attitude of support among club members for the varsity squad as well.

VOLLEYBALL

Exceptional Season Leads to Nationals

The 1981 season first appeared to be a rebuilding year for the Varsity Volleyball Team with a new coach, Joy Heritage, and seven new players, but Heritage and the core of returning players provided the firm base for what proved to be an exceptional season.

The Lady Eagles finished 10-6 in regular play and capped their season with a sixth-place title in the AIAW Division III national tournament in La Verne.

Junior Cathy McDougall and senior

Lydia Godshall were Biola's top hitters, followed by senior Jan Kenyon. McDougall was named to the All-Tournament team at nationals after hitting the 40 points and sideouts and serving an astounding 50 points in eight matches. Godshall, Biola's tallest player this season, led the team in kills and attacks. McDougall and junior Johnette Tarango lead the returning players for next season, in which Coach Heritage hopes to continue the winning tradition of Biola volleyball.

BASKETBALL

Eagles Soar to National Record, 35-0 Season

school time (skōol tīm), n. a period of time during which one rival so dominates his opponent that a teacher/pupil relationship is established.

Throughout the 1981-82 Eagle basketball season, "school" was definitely in session as the proud birds "taught" their way to a perfect 35-0 district championship record and a third consecutive trip to the NAIA national tournament in Kansas City, Missouri.

Biola's record-breaking basketball season was marked by phenomenal accomplishments. The Eagles, co-coached by Howard Lyon and Dave Holmquist, soared to an undefeated ranking in the NAIA and set a national record by maintaining consistent victory for eight successive weeks. Biola is the second team ever to finish with a perfect record before going on to the national tournament. Individual achievements were also at a premium during the 81-82 season, as five of Biola's "teachers" earned All-League honors.

The year in basketball was characterized by "Eagle Mania." Biolans and the community alike joined together to support the most-watched small college team on the West Coast.

Biola gained even further recognition and exposure through articles published in Newsweek and Sports Illustrated magazines, along with a variety of television interviews which featured the only undefeated and untied (regular season) team in any division of 1982 college basketball.

J.V. BASKETBALL

Program Reestablished; Fun Season Follows

The J.V. men's basketball program was reestablished at Biola for the 1981-82 season. The experience of playing J.V. basketball was characterized by commitment and just plain fun.

The fun times included a tournament in Lancaster, California, where the Eagles played three games and earned respect from all the junior colleges who participated, despite a 1-2 showing. The season also included preliminary competition with Westmont and a 90-55 "schooling" of Azusa's J.V. team. The team finished 11-7 in regular season play.

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

Season Brings Scoring Record; Nationals

The 1981-82 basketball season was one of development for the Lady Eagles. Head Coach Betty Norman, assisted by two former players, Suzanne Verboom and Linda Kaufman, worked with four returning players. Led by two All-Americans: Young Ran Cho and Joanne Callender, the Division II Lady Eagles faced a tough schedule playing 17 of their 29 games against Division I teams, finishing out the season with an 18-11 record.

The highlight of the season was a new school single game scoring record. Sophomore Young Ran Cho from South Korea achieved that honor with a 51 point effort against the University of San Francisco.

The Lady Eagles qualified for the national tournament representing region 8. Biola hosted the first and second rounds of the national tournament for regions 4, 6, 8 and 9.

WRESTLING

Eagles Host Tourneys

The 1981-82 wrestling season proved to be a time of challenge and growth for team members. Despite a number of injuries, the Eagle grapplers soared into a season that included NCAA powerhouses Cal State Bakersfield, San Jose, Cal Poly San Luis Obispo and Nevada-Las Vegas, to name a few. Although the team fared below .500, tremendous individual accomplishments were achieved.

This year, a trio of seniors paced Biola's team. Fritz Polk capped his four year stint with the program, while Pat Coyle concluded a three-year career and Chris Putnam finished after two years on the squad. These three men, with the leadership of Coach Matt Orr, provided the necessary direction to help the team unite in efforts to glorify God through wrestling.

The team enjoyed hosting the sixteenth annual Biola Invitational, which proved to be one of the finest tournaments statewide. Biola also welcomed the NCCAA wrestling championships, marking the first time the event was held in a western state.

CROSS COUNTRY

Runners Excel Despite Setbacks

The Biola Cross Country team enlisted four new team members for the 1981 season. The three freshmen and one sophomore recruited offered a substantial measure of new energy to the seven man squad, coached by Colin McDougall.

Although the team showed signs of great potential as a whole and individuals ran well, the team did not excel as they might have largely due to a number of injuries.

In spite of these setbacks, John Hendrix and Steve Schweikart ran to optimum levels of performance in a number of meets.

According to team member Greg Vizzini, "What might have appeared to be an unsuccessful season was not without profit. The team grew closer to one another and to Christ. Our experiences this fall laid both spiritual and physical foundations for the upcoming 1982 season."

Veterans Return

The 1982 Eagle track team welcomed back most of last year's runners. These veteran athletes, under the guidance of Coach Colin McDougall, led a group of individuals to become a team characterized by discipline, encouragement, and hard work.

This year, John Hendrix led Biola's much-improved group of distance runners, Ado Dogonyaro and Kevin Russell led the sprinters, and Rick Stace, named most valuable team member in 1981, brought experience and skill to the specialized area of the high jump.

The team went into the season optimistically, looking forward to spiritual and physical success.

BASEBALL

The Diamond Men

Talent, determination and tradition. These qualities characterized Biola's 1982 Baseball team and made the Eagles very optimistic about their season. Marked as one of the major contenders to win the 1982 District playoffs, Biola's "Diamond Men" had further cause for optimism.

The Eagle's 1982 roster included a unique blend of experience and depth. The core of individuals who were looked to for leadership as well as output were senior pitcher Jim Price, senior pitcher Duane Spoelstra, senior pitcher/outfielder Todd Worrell and senior second baseman Douglas "Rooster" Norton.

The statement which seemed to capsulize the 1982 team was the slogan "Charlie Ball." This slogan referred to Head Coach Charlie Sarver's philosophy of bunt, bunt, and bunt, with the goal of achieving one run and leaving the opponent in a cloud of dust.

Seek the Lord and His strength; seek His face continually.

WOMEN'S TENNIS

Team Seeks Presicion

The chief goal of the 1982 Lady Eagles tennis team was to be conformed to the image of Jesus Christ. This objective conditioned the perspective of each team member before stepping onto the court, during the intensity of the action and after the last ball found its home in can or bucket.

Each player sought to integrate this goal into day-to-day living, even as she worked the ingraining strokes into a state of consistent precision.

Striving for that precision, searching for how best to be like Christ; this remains the diligence spurring each mind, the energy moving each heart.

MEN'S TENNIS

New Talent Builds Team

The 1982 men's tennis team was characterized by new faces and young talent. With seven players from the previous year's squad lost to graduation, the team was comprised entirely of freshmen and sophomores. Still it was not just a "building year" for the Eagle netters, as they found themselves in the heart of the NAIA District III competition.

The team, coached by Rich Rasmussen, was led by returning letterman, Steve Robbins, followed by Marty Pelton, Eric Apffel (captain), Brian Ernst, Jeremy Duval, Tim Cripe, Craig Cook and Glenn Ross. With the return of these team members next season, 1983 promises to be a solid year for the Eagles.

CHEER SQUAD

Spirit of Enthusiasm

With a main goal of support and encouragement, the Biola Cheerleaders entered the 1981-82 school year with a spirit of enthusiasm.

Led by head cheerleader Julie Deeter, this year's squad brought with them fresh ideas and new faces to enhance the overall aspect of school spirit.

Their focus centered not in entertainment but rather in the joining together of both school and team spirit.

The support and encouragement of the cheerleaders did not stop with just one team, but extended to all of the sports throughout the year.

Excitement, enthusiasm and support best described our 1981-82 cheerleading squad.

ATHLETIC BOARD

Record Participation in Intramurals

Biola's Intramural program is coordinated by the Associated Students Athletic Board, led by Chairman Debbie Pierce. Throughout the year, a variety of team and individual sports were offered for the participation and staff.

As in the past, the major sport of the fall intramural season was flag football. The men's championship honors went to the well-known Wolfpack team. The women's championship team was Silverbreeze. As a highlight to the football season, approximately 40 men participated in the filming of the television program "Powers of Matthew Star" posing as a high school football team. The third annual flag football tournament was also a high point for the men's and women's allstar football teams.

The spring semester was filled with three large team sports. In totaling both men's basketball leagues, there was a record total of nearly 200 participating this year. For the second year in a row, women were able to participate in a basketball league of their own. Co-ed volleyball had a large turnout as usual. There were three leagues available for various levels of skill. The third and most traditional sport was softball. Divisions for both men and women provided a high level of competition for both. Intramural action of a smaller scale included tournaments in racquetball, inner tube water polo and ping pong.

Biola's men's volleyball club also falls under the supervision of athletic board. In their second year of competition, the squad appears to be well on its way to becoming an official team sport at Biola. A number of returning players contributed to the overall success of the season.

FOOTBALL

Top Intramural

Flag football is no doubt the most popular intramural sport offered at Biola. It is certainly the most exciting.

Due to the addition of several teams, two Thursday night games were scheduled to supplement traditional Friday night game times. The men's division consisted of two leagues with eight teams each. Also, eight women's teams played within a single league. The men's play-offs involved the top four teams from each league, playing cross-league in a single elimination play-off schedule. The top four finishing women's teams competed in play-offs as well.

Specially selected all-star teams played on several occasions. For the third year, Biola hosted an all-star football tournament involving six local colleges. This tournament was a highlight for our all-star teams.

The annual Azusa-Biola game was another exciting event for the all-star teams. Our men's and women's teams traveled to Azusa this year, enjoying a unique form of fellowship.

The Lord is their strength, and He is a saving defense to His anointed.

Psalm 28:8

STUDENT LIFE

You shall love
your neighbor
as yourself.

You shall do no injustice in judgment; you shall not be partial to the poor nor defer to the great, but you are to judge your neighbor fairly.

You shall not go about as a slanderer among your people, and you are not to act against the life of your neighbor; I am the Lord.

You shall not take vengeance, nor bear any grudge against the sins of your people, but you shall love your neighbor as yourself; I am the Lord.

Leviticus 19:15-16, 18

Brethren, I do not regard myself as having laid hold of it yet; but one thing I do: forgetting what lies behind and reaching forward to what lies ahead,

I press on toward the goal for the prize of the upward call of God in Christ Jesus.

RESIDENCE LIFE

Friendships For Life

An integral part of the college experience at Biola takes place outside the classroom in the residence halls. Residence life is part of Biola's commitment and concern for the total development of every individual student. Very often in the context of a college setting, there is a gap between what is learned intellectually and what is experienced practically. Residence life is part of the process of narrowing the gap. Residents in the halls are challenged to put into practice those principles which they have learned.

Perhaps in a few years, many of the things that we learn in the classroom will be forgotten or will remain unused, but the lifestyle we develop now will be ours for life.

As Psalm 133 reads, "Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brothers (and sisters) to dwell together in unity."

ASSOCIATED STUDENTS

Council Makes Improvements

The 1982 Associated Students' Council has made significant improvements this year which have served to benefit all students at Biola.

Physical improvements on campus included the new T.V. screen in the Student Union Building, commonly known as the SUB, and the restoration of the formerly neglected fountain outside the SUB.

In addition to material upgrading, A.S. Council also improved internal channels of communication. Council members united to operate as one body rather than as nine separate boards pursuing individual interests.

Furthermore, A.S. Council furthered its impact by reaching out to our community. For example, Biola has been actively involved with the Los Angeles Collegiate Council, comprised of the student body presidents of fourteen local colleges and universities, including USC and UCLA. Biola is the only Christian institution represented in the council, which affords unique opportunities for exemplifying our distinctive Christian ethics. The Day of Prayer Park Project, sponsored by A.S. Chappel Board, was another opportunity for outreach as students cleaned up the La Mirada Regional Park as a free community service.

The members of A.S. Council have taken on the responsibility of serving Biola students through chapels, socials, intramural athletics, publications, summer mission opportunities, maintaining the SUB, and maintaining a liason between students and the administration. There is no greater way to display love for one's neighbor than by taking on a commitment of service to one another.

KING'S DAUGHTERS AND BIOLA MEN

Collaboration Proves Effective

Two of Biola's oldest organizations, King's Daughters and Biola Men, collaborated this year to increase both the quality and the quantity of programs which served to meet the unique needs of men and women Biola students.

King's Daughters council, led by President Bonnie Feddern, sought to implement outreaches and activities which appeal to the women in the Biola community. Under the direction of President Dennis Wadley, the 1982 Biola Men council worked to realize similar social and spiritual goals for the men in attendance at Biola.

In combining their councils, KD and Biola Men initiated several effective new programs. For instance, Biola's first Sno-Blast, co-sponsored by King's Daughters and Biola Men, promises to be an annual event. Joint beach trips and the Big Brother/Big Sister outreach for incoming freshmen also proved successful.

King's Daughters and Biola Men hope to continue to blend ideas, resources and efforts in future cooperative ventures.

SOCIAL BOARD

Activities Highlight Memories

The Associated Students Social Board is responsible for providing functions which meet the social needs of Biola's student body. This year's board, led by Chairman Brad Wiggers, scheduled a variety of events which met these needs in a positive Christian manner.

Fun and variety were the core of a magic show, the Chancel Players dramatic presentation, an all-school skate, ice cream socials and a campus-wide SWAT game. Along with these activities, the 1982 board also sponsored the traditional Biola favorites: the Spring Banquet, concerts and movies including "Brian's Song" and the three-dimensional production "Creature from the Black Lagoon."

Biolans were also privileged to enjoy the vocal sensitivity of Doug Howell, the encouraging lyrics of Denny Correll, the honest expression of Janice Archer and the musical mastery of Chris Christian, all of whom performed in concert on the Biola campus.

The year was capped off in style with the Spring Banquet held at the Queen Mary in Long Beach. Farrell and Farrell provided the evening's entertainment, and Liz Ryrie was responsible for coordinating the arrangements for the banquet.

Memories of times spent together this year in both casual and formal settings are bound to follow many Biolans through their lives, reminding them of highlights of their college years.

STUDENT RELATIONS BOARD

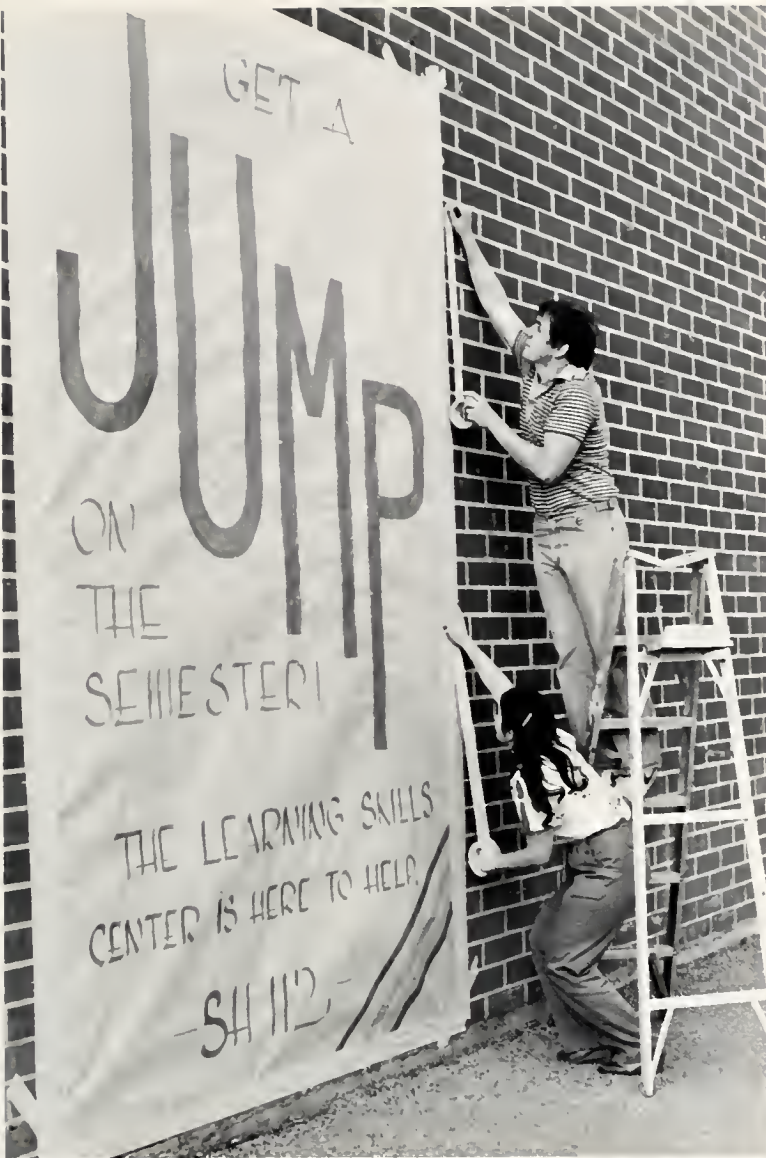

Facilitating A.S. Communication

Biola's Student Relations Board exists to enhance communication between A.S. Council and the student body. Through the use of surveys, posters and various other media, representatives on the board work to convey A.S. decisions and activities to the student body at large as well as to faculty, administrators, resident assistants and the local community.

SRB produces the Paperclip, a monthly supplement to the Chimes which highlights A.S. news. The board also maintains a master calendar of Biola events, supervises a publicity department which creates the large display posters that frequently line the campus walls and coordinates the Brother Watch program to guarantee the safety of women resident students.

New SRB projects this year included Metzger Tours, which provided participants with firsthand insights into the workings of Biola's administration, as well as Encourage, Inc., a system by which students may send notes of appreciation to faculty and staff members.

SRB Chairman Todd Capen comments, "The task of Student Relations is to communicate and to receive communication from the students. We've had a year that has challenged our creativity in meeting the demands of the job, but we are thankful and confident about how things have turned out."

STUDENT PUBLICATIONS

Committed to Excellence

The production of all student publications at Biola is overseen by the Associated Students Publications Board.

This year's Publications Board, led by Chairman Kevin Perkins, sought to maintain a commitment to excellence as a hallmark of the Chimes, Biola's weekly student newspaper; the 1982 Biolan and the other services provided by the board, such as photography and typesetting.

Let everyone please his neighbor for his good to edification.

'Now to Him' Stressed as Theme

In evaluating needs and goals for this year, the Chimes editorial staff selected a fragment of Ephesians 3:20, "Now to Him," to represent its intentions and motivation. This theme is representative of the staff's desire to excel and to make the Chimes glorifying to God in every way.

Editor-in-Chief Lyn Miller, assisted by Copy Editor Tammy Thomas and the entire Chimes staff, succeeded in making the tone of Volume 44 of the Chimes thoroughly honest, yet thoroughly positive at the same time.

Second Semester Editor Lynda Austin and staff continued this trend during the latter half of the school year and worked to guarantee the quality and appeal of the Chimes.

BIOLAN

Deadlines Effect Results . . .

In keeping with the Publications Board's desire to make excellence the hallmark of all Biola's student publications, the 1982 Biolan staff worked hard to produce a yearbook of outstanding quality.

The staff, led by editors Bob Williams and Helen Boese, grasped the concept of Christian excellence more fully by reading through the book Addicted to Mediocrity written by Franky Schaeffer.

Business manager Jeff Sturgis successfully raised a record quota of advertising patronage.

Detailed planning, exacting layout and late nights of production before deadlines all contributed to the challenge of producing volume forty-nine of the Biolan.

KBBK

Campus Radio Serves Students

Biola University features its own campus radio station, KBBK. With the help and direction of Dr. Tom Nash, professor of radio, television and film, a group of university students undertake the complete management and production of the station. The first-hand learning experiences these students are engaged in include newscasting, sports reporting, broadcasting techniques, radio sales and numerous other areas of communication through radio. In this way, those involved gain a comprehensive knowledge of this media form. One of the special privileges of those participating has been the chance to cover the BU basketball team's participation in NAIAA tournaments.

STUDENT SERVICES

Board Initiates Improvements

The objective of the A.S. Student Service Board is, as their name implies, serving Biola students. The board is comprised of three departments: the Student Union Building (commonly known as the SUB), the Depot and Food Factory. The structure of the Union Building, which houses the Depot and the Food Factory, is totally student owned and operated.

This year, several significant improvements have been initiated by Student Services Board. In addition to general custodial and maintenance responsibilities, Student Services has repaired the fountain outside the SUB, installed new seating in the Food Factory, provided students with a 50" big-screen television for leisure viewing, set up ping pong tables and acquired several large plants to enhance the general aesthetics of the building.

The philosophy of Student Services Board is to put money where Biolans can see it. This concentration on student related projects can be observed in the Depot, which offers merchandise bearing the Biola insignia, and the Food Factory, which provides on-campus students with a break from the cafeteria and also serves as a gathering place for commuting students.

Student Services Board Chairman Jon Friesen comments, "We in Student Services enjoyed the opportunity to serve this year. In short, we've done the job we love, and we genuinely hope that students have loved the job we've done."

STUDENT SERVICE DEPARTMENTS

Individuals Insure Operations

All of us at Biola would do well to appreciate those who serve us in the various support departments across campus.

Working behind the scenes in many cases, those invaluable individuals work to insure the smooth flow of day-to-day operations.

By answering phones, preparing meals, raking leaves, administering vaccinations, typing transcripts, shelving books, maintaining the grounds, calculating scholarships, posting employment opportunities, and attending to so many other important details, the University's student service departments form the hub of the wheel that keeps Biola moving ahead.

Official Biola clubs, chartered by A.S. Student Relations Board, offer a variety of opportunities for students to become involved in several special-interest areas.

Activities ranging from exploring the issues of modern politics with Biolans for Political Involvement to planning Black History Week with B.A.S.I.C. (Black American Students in College), or from enjoying a social get-together with the Education Club to playing racquetball with the Biola Racqueteers, Biolans can profit from experiences which might not otherwise be a part of their college careers.

INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS

Fostering Foreign Awareness

This year the major goals of the International Student Fellowship Group at Biola were providing opportunities for international students to interact and build friendships as well as fostering a greater awareness of internationals among the Biola community at large.

Various programs and events were held to realize these objectives. For example, international students, missionary kids and potential missionaries gathered each Thursday morning in Marshburn Hall for international chapels. These chapels were good times for fellowship, worship and learning.

International potlucks provided a chance to once again cook and enjoy typical "native" foods, and Americans who attended the potlucks often had their first introduction to home-cooked "foreign" foods.

The major event of Fall '81 for the International Student Fellowship Group was the Third World Dinner. The international students provided the recipes, the Biola cafeteria prepared the food and the international students clad in their native dress served the dishes buffet style to Biola students, faculty and staff. Some of the musically talented international students provided the evening's entertainment through native song and instrumental music.

Better is a neighbor who is near than a brother who is far away.

FALL PRELIMINARIES

Activities Start the Year

As summer vacation faded into fall semester 1981, a variety of activities took place at Biola to both facilitate and ease the transition.

In between registering, buying books and settling into dorms, students enjoyed making new acquaintances and renewing old friendships as well as catching some sun at local beaches.

For incoming freshmen and new students, orientation seminars occupied a large portion of registration week. The annual Freshman Reception provided opportunities for new students to interact with faculty and staff members in an informal setting.

Fall semester began Friday, September 5, with convocation ceremonies held that morning. During the ceremonies which opened Biola's charter semester as a university, Dr. Dave Peters, Professor of History and Political Science, delivered the convocation address in which he challenged students and faculty to strive for the highest mark of excellence in all pursuits at Biola.

COLLEGE DAY

Campus Faire Creates Interest and Provides Information

Prospective students who visited Biola during the annual fall and spring College Days gained first-hand exposure to the campus, the programs and the people who comprise Biola University.

This year the College Days, which were sponsored by the admissions and university relations departments and coordinated by admissions counselor Gail Johnston, featured several new opportunities for potential students to become better acquainted with Biola.

For example, many visiting students took advantage of staying in the dorms the night before College Day. These accommodations gave visitors a chance to get a real taste of dorm life and to enjoy social activities planned especially for them.

Without doubt, the most profitable added feature this year was the Campus Faire held on the campus green during each College Day. Many departments within the university participated by sponsoring booths which presented individual programs and organizations on campus to guests who frequented the faire. Every major that Biola offers was represented, and special interest groups also were present. Fall fairegoers enjoyed a western display created by A.S. Council, a railroad setting courtesy of the Depot, jungle antics staged by SMU and a chance to thumb through vintage copies of the Chimes and Biolan in a Great Gatsby scene recreated by Student Publications. Financial Services gave away "free money" while the Counseling Center staff distributed lifesavers and balloons.

In keeping with College Day tradition, guests attended special chapels which were highlighted by Chorale, Symphonic Band and drama presentations, as well as special welcomes from President Chase and A.S. Council members. Visitors also toured the campus and sat in on a number of classes.

College Day has a definite influence upon students who are thinking of attending Biola. Dave Risely, a prospective student who attended the fall College Day, commented, "I'm strongly considering coming to Biola now. I got to talk with people from my major about what is available. The students really gave me insight into what Biola is about. Overall, I was impressed."

Let the love of the brethren continue. Do not neglect to show hospitality to strangers, for by this some have entertained angels without knowing it.

INTERSESSION

Fourth January Term Offered

In January about 1,300 Biola University students returned to campus for courses lasting anywhere from three days to four weeks. This year, 1982, marked the fourth year that Biola has been on an academic calendar that includes a separate January term known as Intercession.

Off-campus courses included a natural history of Baja, California, a political science trip to Sacramento and trip to the Institute of Holy Land Studies in Jerusalem. Many Bible and general education courses were offered, as well as upper-division major requirements. For the second year in a row, students also enjoyed "cutting up" in a cadaver dissection class.

One highlight of Intercession chapels was the appearance of the Seoul Seminary singers from Korea, who shared their faith in music and testimony.

Finally brethren, whatever is true, whatever is honorable, whatever is right, whatever is pure, whatever is lovely, whatever is of good repute, if there is any excellence and if anything worthy of praise, let your mind dwell on these things.

SNO-BLAST

Weekend of Skiing, Fellowship

Biola's first annual Sno-Blast, sponsored by King's Daughters and Biola Men, was a tremendous success. Following the conclusion of Torrey Conference, over 100 rowdy Biolans packed their snow gear and headed for a weekend of skiing and fellowship at Camp Cedarcrest in the San Bernardino mountains. Eleven faculty members accompanied the group to serve as discussion leaders and cabin counselors.

Highlights of Sno-Blast '82 included innertube competition, a concert by Biola gospel team "Simple Gift" and times set apart for learning more about each other and the Lord.

The theme of the weekend centered around fellowship and the importance of our accountability to other believers. This emphasis climaxed on Sunday as each person committed himself to find people at Biola to which he could be personally accountable.

Sno-Blast '82 was an excellent time to relax and gain perspective on life before the onset of the rigors and pressures of second semester.

Psalm 15:1-3

COMMENCEMENT

Charter Exercises Held

Biola students representing some 26 different majors were honored as charter university graduates in fall and spring commencement exercises. Graduates from the School of Arts, Sciences, and Professions, Talbot Theological Seminary and Rosemead School of Psychology were involved in the ceremonies.

Fall graduates met in the Biola University gymnasium on December 12 for the confirmation of diplomas. W. Cameron Townsend, founder of Wycliffe Bible Translators, spoke to graduates and their families on the subject "God's Word in Every Tongue." The ceremony was highlighted by the presentation of an honorary Doctor of Literature degree to Townsend by President Chase.

Spring commencement exercises took place on May 29. Those assembled for the ceremonies were addressed by Dr. Carl F. Henry, founding editor and editor-at-large of Christianity Today. Dr. Henry is also a lecturer with World Vision International and has served on the faculties of Eastern Baptist Seminary, Fuller Theological Seminary and Northern Baptist Theological Seminary.

Determining Your Neighborhood

By KRISTINE NAAS

Neighbors are a sticky commodity. Like dried gum on the bottom of a tennis shoe, they have a remarkable adhesive ability once they have settled. When someone has selected the apartment, house, or dorm room adjacent to your own, chances are you're stuck with him for a while. As Christians, we are commanded to love our neighbors as we love ourselves (Mark 12:3), be they unwelcome company or delightful guests. What's more, our love for God is expressed in a practical sense when we demonstrate "neighborly love" through such characteristics as loyalty, laughter, unconditional love and longsuffering.

In the broadest sense of the term, a neighbor is "one living or located near another." The Lord Jesus Christ expanded this definition in the parable of the Good Samaritan to include attitudes and actions as well as logistics (Luke 10:30-37). Indeed, the qualities of a "neighbor" are closely related to those of a friend. The temptation to dilute these characteristics into theological gibberish and sentimental slush is forever present. Yet to do so is to miss the point of the commandment completely. Since love itself is an action resulting from a choice, it reasonably follows that loving one's neighbor is also an action and a choice.

Love Defined

The charge to love one's neighbor originates in the ability and desire to love God and oneself. According to Scripture, God is the ultimate and perfect definition of love. His love is perhaps most clearly demonstrated by His eternal graciousness in giving. God gave His Son as an act of love (1 John 4:8-10, John 3:16). As Lloyd John Ogilvie writes in The Beauty of Friendship, "Friendship is not dependent upon performance or perfection. We are a friend not for what we can get but what we can give" (Ogilvie, page 9).

I learned a great deal about the relationship between loving and giving through a friend named Shelley. Her creativity was endless, especially on special occasions such as birthdays. At 5:30 in the morning last year, the unwelcome world of consciousness slammed its way into my dreams. As "subtle" as a freight train, the invasion was launched with a barrage of incessant pounding on my door. With residual cobwebs of sleep still clouding my mind, I stumbled to the door and cautiously unlocked it. To my surprised delight I discovered a corsage of yellow roses and a note at my feet. They were both homemade and in my favorite colors. The note read simply, "Happy Birthday! Love, Shelley." The gifts were not expensive, but they were gifts in the true sense of less cackle of a moron, but as an intelligent, spontaneous expression of joy. It was a quality of friendship as much as it is fruit of the Spirit. Ogilvie observes, "We all get grim when we take ourselves too seriously and fail to take God seriously enough. Without ever laughing at us, a friend helps us to laugh at ourselves" (Ogilvie, page 9). When my world was dark and grim, it was Shelley who opened my eyes to the comical and proved the truth of Proverbs 17:22: "A joyful heart the word: investments of time and effort with no reciprocal expectations attached. A true friend, Shelley expressed her love tangibly, just as God did when He sent His Son to be our Redeemer.

The Value of Laughter

God not only equipped Shelley with unique talents of loving expression, but He also gave her such a deep sense of joy that it refused suppression. Regardless of context or moment, when Shelley saw something ludicrous or comical, she laughed — not with the mind-is good medicine . . . "

The evening prior to my most-dreadful fifth week exam I was tense, frustrated and felt generally rotten. Because she was my friend, and because she "loved me as herself," Shelley was there when I needed her. In fact, she masterminded an insane diversion that was "just what the doctor ordered." At 1:00 a.m. that morning, I found myself garbed in black from head to toe, intent on an espionage mission crucial to the "preservation of world peace." As diagrammed by Shelley, our objective was a Communist headquarters (also known as the "CUB") deep in the heart of enemy territory. The mission began at Sigma Chi. With the calculated stealth of a leopard stalking its prey, we hid behind bushes, dodged imaginary bullets, and slithered our way to a successful capture at slightly past 0200. I've never laughed so hard in my life. (I also passed the exam.)

Because she was my friend, Shelley sensed a need and lost no time in creating an atmosphere that met it. Although Shelley knew how to laugh, she also knew when to be serious, especially when it came to matters of loyalty.

Loyalty in the Lion's Cage

I Corinthians 13:7 states, "If you love someone, you will be loyal to him no matter what the cost. You will always believe in him, always expect the best of him, and always stand your ground in defending him" (TLB). When was the last time you entered the lion's cage of criticism and faced those gaping jaws alone? With a friend, a true friend that is, you are never alone. As Ogilvie explains, "True friends can count on each other to be for them, defend each other when others criticize or misunderstand, and remain steadfast in difficulties." Proverbs 17:17 puts it even more succinctly: "A friend loves at all times, and a brother is born for adversity."

Shelley was that kind of friend. Her loyalty for me knew no bounds. Endowed with an iron will and a spunky, fighting spirit, she stuck with me "through thick and thin." Even when she did not understand me, she was loyal. When I frustrated or confused her, she reserved judgment, always believing the best. When faced with a misunderstanding concerning a third party, it was Shelley who became the mediator. When I needed a shoulder to cry on, she was there. She stood with me when no one else would, and in those "sticky situations" we all encounter, I could depend upon her intelligent defense. She listened. She cared. She worked at understanding and she earned my trust. Even when I drove her crazy, I knew I could count on her loyalty. She never failed. She accepted me and loved me with patience.

Enduring Failures and Foibles

According to Webster, "long-suffering" denotes "patient endurance." According to the Bible, it is also a characteristic of love (I Corinthians 13:4-7). Ogilvie says "Any real friendship endures the test of failure and foibles. Patience takes the long view and claims what we will be, not what we've been." That was Shelley.

One March evening I received upsetting news and needed someone to "dump on." I immediately called Shelley. We talked for nearly four hours until everything was out of my system. Actually, I suppose I did most of the talking. Shelley listened with an empathetic ear. It was not until three days later that I learned that at the time she received my call Shelley was studying for an exam that would most likely determine her final grade. Because she was willing to "patiently endure" my burden rather than turn me away, she failed the exam. It was another facet of her commitment to me as a friend — a commitment of love, loyalty, laughter and long-suffering.

Shelley graduated last May. Even though we are separated by three thousand miles, she remains my friend, because once God gives a command, His intent is obedience. Forever. Through Shelley, God taught me it is impossible to manufacture the characteristics of a friend, or to obey the commandment to "love your neighbor as yourself" by will power alone. It is the power of the living Christ within that enables us to truly, genuinely love our neighbors. It is a difficult and often demanding command to perform, but it can be done. I know someone who has.

Kristine Naas, a senior Communications major with an emphasis in print media, served this year as feature editor for the Chimes.

Competition should never discourage friendship, as Jeff Salo demonstrates.

GRACE BRETHREN FELLOWSHIP

Pastor Richard Cron

Hi! We want you to know about Grace Brethren Fellowship. We are located half way between La Mirada Blvd. and Santa Gertrudes on Oxford Drive. Because we are so close to Biola (less than 2 miles), we regard it as a major part of our ministry to have and maintain a program geared to meet the needs of Biola students. We will sincerely work with you on Christian service assignments and attempt to give you a warm place of fellowship where your spiritual gifts can be exercised. We know many of you are far removed from your homes and we are prepared to be your parents away from home.

Sincerely,

The Family of Grace Brethren Fellowship

Christian Printing

We were asked to place an advertisement in the yearbook as a courtesy, and we were happy to do so. Instead of just the usual "congratulations" type ad, we decided to say something about the work in which we have specialized for more than half a century.

At the beginning we did everything we could. Now we don't. The change has been due to the invention of "instant printing" which takes care of small jobs, and the proliferation of web printers who take care of very large jobs. We try to handle the in-between. If people come in with a job that is too small or too large for us, we refer them to a reliable instant printer, or to a reliable web printer. We do not wish to be brokers. Since our specialty is Christian printing, we do not mind taking time to evaluate customers' needs and to refer elsewhere if necessary. It is all part of the service which we wish to provide for our brethren in Christ.

Sometimes we try to discourage people from printing at all. For example, authors who do not know how they expect to sell their books after they are printed. Another category is those who do not have the money to pay for their printing but who expect that "the Lord will provide."

Please feel free to call us if we can be of assistance. Our services include typesetting, printing, binding. Church Press, 3915 San Fernando Road, Glendale, CA 91204. (213) 245-9424.

INVESTMENTS! TIME!

Give them ETERNAL VALUE

INVEST your TIME for

• A summer • One or two years • A lifetime

HOW?
 Let God use the abilities and spiritual gifts He has given you in an outreach to INDIANS, ESKIMOS, ALEUTS, or WHITES in ALASKA and CANADA.

ME?
 If you sincerely desire to invest your time for the Lord, have a servant's heart, and are willing to serve in a difficult place—we want to hear from you.

No Greater Command, No Greater Respect

By BOB WILLIAMS

Have you ever imagined what it would be like if drivers in metropolitan Los Angeles did not obey traffic laws? Or what if an aeronautical engineer designed an aircraft without considering the laws of gravity and aerodynamics? Think of the chaos that would ensue if the United States were attacked by opposing militia and our armed forces ignored the President's directives to mobilize?

Common sense dictates that instructions are meant to be followed and that commands are issued to be obeyed. Stop and consider the emphasis that mankind places on observing established rules. Deviation from the law results in penalties, imprisonment and sometimes death. If we are this serious about stressing such temporal rules, think of the tremendous emphasis the Lord places on keeping His commandments, commandments which have eternal ramifications.

The Practicality of Obedience

Jesus Christ meant business when He gave instructions for Christian living. As God, He knows the course on which the world is destined, and what's more, He has triumphed over all circumstances, persons and powers by virtue of His death and resurrection. The commandments He gives are tempered by this perspective and designed to facilitate optimum success now and forever for those who will heed them. Cast in this light, our obedience appears extremely practical, logical and even lucrative.

By the same token, our blatant dismissal, lethargic treatment and casual observance of the Lord's commandments are absolutely shocking. Granted, we are bent toward sin (especially selfish pride), and therefore we are often sidetracked from keeping His commandments as we should. We need to admit this, but we must never use it as license to rationalize delinquency.

Yes, it is difficult to live the Christian life. In fact, it's quite impossible to live it effectively if one does not draw from the resources of the only One who can. He lived it impeccably nearly 2,000 years ago, and He still lives today in and through his people. That One is Jesus Christ.

Our Utmost Priorities

The Lord Jesus has specified that if we are serious about our relationship with Him, there are two commandments we need to obey above all others. First, we are to love God with the whole of our hearts, souls, minds and strength and then we're to love our neighbors as ourselves. It is vital to note that at the end of Mark 12:29-31 where Jesus outlines these directives, He qualifies them as the greatest commandments of all. Therefore, we should regard them as our upmost priorities, and channel all of our energies toward realizing their accomplishment.

From these commandments, it is quite apparent that the highest thing we can do in life is to love the Lord with all that we are. Our love for Him prompts us to follow His instructions, for as He has said, "If you love Me, you will keep My commandments" (John 14:15). Loving the Lord motivates us to be sensitive to His leading in all areas and to love others as He first loved us.

A Dynamic Example

We at Biola can be grateful for contact with a man who has consistently modeled these qualities in our midst. The sincerity of his heart, the sanctification of his soul, the brilliance of his mind and the strength of his leadership have caused us to love and respect Dr. J. Richard Chase with the highest esteem. His deep concern for each of us who comprise the Biola community characterizes exactly what Mark 12:31 requires. We may admire him further for his sensitivity to God's direction which will lead him on this August to serve as president of Wheaton College in Illinois.

Dr. Chase's association with Biola began over 30 years ago when he attended the Bible Institute of Los Angeles as a student (Class of '51). Between 1951 and 1954 he earned his Bachelor and Master of Arts degrees at Pepperdine University and returned to Biola in 1953 as a professor of speech communication. He received his Ph.D. from Cornell University in 1961, and four years later was named Academic Vice President of Biola College, Inc. In 1970, Dr. Chase was inaugurated as Biola's sixth president.

In dedicating the 1963 Biolan to Dr. Chase, Editor Carol McBea expressed sentiments which very much parallel ours today. "In this world of darkness, God has chosen to enlighten the lives of men that others may see and be drawn to His Light. As these men cross our paths, we cannot help but be affected and enriched. During our years at Biola we have been enlightened by such a man through his wisdom, humor, humility, unselfishness and a rare quality of expression that not only teaches a subject, but also passes on the vitality of that subject."

It is for this same light shed in our lives that we appreciate Dr. Chase now, almost 20 years later. We shall miss him greatly, but we commend him to continue dynamically enriching the lives of others in his new surroundings.

An Appeal for Distinction

Over the years, Dr. Chase has challenged us repeatedly to value and practice distinctive Christian living. He has frequently stressed the importance of integrity over personal gain, discipline over indolence and realizing maximum potential rather than settling for mediocrity. Each of these principles, along with the others that comprise the balance of effective Christianity, are fundamentally related to a love for God which consumes one's heart, soul, mind, and strength and breeds more love to extend to others.

Does the compassion we display indicate the significance of our faith? Does sincere charity characterize our actions? Does obedience prove our love for Christ?

Let us demonstrate the distinction of our faith and the glory of our Savior by keeping the utmost of His commandments. Dedicate your heart, consecrate your soul, commit your mind, apply your strength and devote your relationships to love, for as our Lord has said, "There is no commandment greater than these."

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Special Thanks for Creativity, Dedication and Encouragement

The 1982 Biolan would not be complete without the acknowledgement of those who have contributed in significant ways to its production.

I'm eternally indebted to Lydia Godshall for the excellent photography throughout the book and for her consistent dependability. Special thanks are also due her two dedicated assistants, Les Duncan and Kevin Humble.

In light of his tremendous success in raising advertising revenue which financed so many of the special features added to this year's Biolan, I'm almost positive that our business manager, Jeff Sturgis, is well on his way to owning a home in Bel Air and a fleet of Porches. Thanks, Jeff.

Associate Editor Helen Boese has been a delight to work with ever since we first set out to defrost the refrigerator just about a year ago. Few people have the patience it takes to process over 2,000 mug shots, and she is to be commended for her dedication. (Her mug shot isn't bad either!)

The staff members who put in so many hours to make this book possible are very close to my heart. I'm so grateful for each of them and their creativity and cooperation. I'm especially proud of Literary Arts Editor Taunji Harmon, Academics Editor Lynne McIlhaney and Athletics Editor Laurie Katz.

I'll refrain from thanking the academy, because everybody does that, but I will extend my sincere thanks to two of the best Gregs around; first our new Herff-Jones representative, Greg Miller, whose printing expertise and enthusiasm have been invaluable, and then to Greg Hemsoth, our former rep who has now advanced to a new position at Herff corporate headquarters in Indianapolis. And, speaking of the Midwest, I'm also very appreciative of Delores Leach, our patient customer advisor, and all the Herff staff back at the Marceline, Missouri plant where our book is printed.

"Who else is left to thank?" you ask. Hang on, there are just a few more. It has been my pleasure to work with A.S. Publications Board Chairman Kevin Perkins and faculty advisor Cindy Surendorf. Thank you both for your confidence in me.

And, lest I forget, I'm much obliged to University Relations Director Evelyn Gibson for introducing me to the "minimalist" format, for several other even better laughs, and for the assistance of her staff, especially Cheryl Morosco, to whom I'm grateful for resources which have served to guarantee much of the general accuracy of the 1982 book.

A large measure of encouragement to persevere in this project has come from my great roommate and friend, Kenny Bagley. And, while on the subject of inspiration, it has been a personal and professional joy to work so closely with MGM in the production of this yearbook. I'd almost like to let you who read this think that I really do mean Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer — but I'm even prouder to say that I'm referring to my dear friend Marilyn Grace Miller, whose creativity, sensitivity and sincerity are matched by few.

I feel as if I can thank all of those I have mentioned here with some degree of adequacy for their consistent efforts and support. There is One, however, Who I am completely inadequate to thank sufficiently not only for the stamina, the ideas and even the trials that have been necessary to produce this book, but also for those same commodities by which He gives me the grace to live my life.

I am thoroughly confident that this One, Jesus Christ, prompted the message which our yearbook conveys, and it is therefore my deep privilege to present volume forty-nine of the Biolan to the students, faculty, staff and friends of Biola University.

In the Spirit of the Commandment,

Bob Williams
